Borgen, the Danish term for parliament, is a glossy political thriller in which the plot turns on the election of a fictional female prime minister. In the first episode the plot begins in London, but that was for the benefit of Danes rather than the potential export market. "It was to appeal to Danish viewers ï¿½ we had no idea it was going to travel back to the UK later," said Hammerich.

Borgen is already showing signs of emulating the success of The Killing. An impressive 650,000 viewers tuned in for the opening episode, two weeks ago.

1. INTRODUCTION

1.1 Invitation to participate
The moderators of rec.radio.broadcasting (RRB) invite the participation of broadcast professionals and non-professionals alike. Both the people who operate radio stations and the people who listen to them have valuable insights into the art, business, and/or science of broadcasting.

1.2 Charter

Rec.radio broadcasting is intended as a worldwide forum dedicated to the discussion of subjects pertaining to domestic radio broadcasting. By the term "domestic," we mean radio which is intended basically for reception within the country in which it originates. Other Usenet groups are available for discussing international broadcast services.

1.3 How to submit articles

You can use your newsreading software to submit an article to rec.radio.broadcasting as you would to any other newsgroup. The only difference is that your news server will automatically forward your article to the moderation team instead of posting it directly to the group. Alternatively, you can email submissions to rec-radio-broadcasting@panix.com. We generally turn around articles at least the same day, usually much faster.

2. ACCEPTABLE AND UNACCEPTABLE TOPICS

If you are ever unsure about whether a proposed topic is appropriate for RRB, please feel free to ask the moderation team at:

rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com

2.1 Newsgroup focus

RRB is designed to provide a public forum for professional and informed discussion and dissemination of information pertaining to the art, business, and science of radio broadcasting. By "professional and informed," we mean discussions by broadcast professionals as well as those with a serious interest in radio broadcasting. As mentioned in the Introduction, we welcome the participation of radio listeners as well as those inside the industry.

RRB is an international newsgroup, so the term "domestic" should not be taken to imply just the United States or North America. Readers in other nations are encouraged to post questions and comments about their own country's radio stations.

2.2 Examples of acceptable topics

Generally, if a subject would be of interest to broadcast professionals or listeners, it is acceptable. Here are just a few ideas for discussion topics:

* New stations and changes to existing stations (but see section 2.6 for limitations on discussions of unlicensed stations)
* Formats and programming
* Equipment and techniques involved in the transmission and reception of broadcast radio signals
* Other engineering and technical matters
* Domestic broadcast-band DXing
* Community broadcasting
* Legislation affecting radio stations
* Radio's current and future trends
* Job openings and help to those seeking work in the industry

If you post about a local radio station or personality, please realize that most RRB readers will know little or nothing about that station or person, so please include a little background to set the context for your remarks.

2.3 Examples of unacceptable topics

This is not a comprehensive list. Please contact the moderation team if you aren't sure whether your proposed topic is appropriate or not.

* Non-domestic stations and activities (BBC World, Voice of America, SWLing, etc.)
* Non-broadcast radio services (amateur, Internet, satellite, etc.)
* Television broadcasting (except on rare occasions when the subject of the posting would also be of broad interest to radio people).

2.4 Programming discussions

Because the intent of RRB is to foster discussion, postings of a primarily promotional nature should be kept to a minimum. Program hosts and other interested parties are welcome to submit brief notices about special guests, fill-in hosts, etc. However, playlists, weekly program schedules, and similar listings should instead be posted in a more appropriate venue, such as the station's or host's website.

Reviews of the performance of on-air personalities are fine, but please note that rec.radio.broadcasting is not the place to discuss the topics of radio talk shows. (Unless the topic itself is the art, science, or business of radio broadcasting.)

Postings about broadcasters' off-air activities should usually be confined to events that are that are related to their broadcast career, such as personal appearances on behalf of their station. Exceptions will be made for extraordinary events such as a broadcaster's death.

2.5 Commercial postings

Businesses and individuals today have a wealth of online selling venues--both general sites such as eBay and Craigslist, and region-specific Usenet groups such as ba.broadcast and uk.tech.broadcast. Therefore, RRB may not be the most effective place to post your for-sale ad. It's best when you want to offer an item that's likely to be of interest to broadcasters or radio fans over a broad geographical area. Please consider the alternatives before submitting your posting to RRB.

Examples of suitable for-sale postings might include, "My station just got a new mixer and is selling its old Acme Model 100; please contact me directly for details," or "I just found a box of KHJ aircheck tapes in my basement; drop me a note if you're interested in buying them."

For-sale message must solicit responses directly to the poster; do not direct readers to another site such as Craigslist or eBay.

Notices about especially important or interesting new products are fine. Please disclose whether or not you have a financial interest in the manufacturer or reseller you're mentioning.

Each poster to RRB is allowed one commercial posting per month.

Postings about job openings are welcomed. Be sure to include your real name, company name, and valid contact information (email address, phone number, or mailing address).

2.6 Pirate radio

Postings about unlicensed domestic radio operations should be limited to discussions of their history, notices of enforcement actions, discussions of technical conflicts between licensed and unlicensed stations, or strictly informational messages (such as, "A pirate station has been heard in Chicago on 104.7"). Postings that seek to support pirate stations (such as by drawing money, personnel, equipment, or listeners) will not be approved.

2.7 Moderation policies

Questions or complaints about moderation decisions or policies will not be permitted in the newsgroup itself. Please direct any such feedback to the moderators by sending us a message at rec-

radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com.

If you see an obviously inappropriate article in our newsgroup, please assume that it was a mistake or a direct forgery, and do not send follow-up postings. You may submit feedback to the administrative address regarding such articles, although it is likely that our monitoring software and procedures have already detected the problem and we are actively handling it.

3. NETIQUETTE

3.1 Introduction to Usenet netiquette

Participants who are new to Usenet should familiarize themselves with the "netiquette" of Usenet as well as the particular posting guidelines for this group. Several useful posts for "newbies" can be found on the newsgroup news.announce.newusers or on the World Wide Web at:

http://www.faqs.org/faqs/by-newsgroup/news/news.announce.newusers.html

Particularly helpful articles are:

3.2 Civility

Participants in rec.radio.broadcasting are encouraged to state their own views and share their experiences enthusiastically. However, in doing so, you should maintain a civil tone in all postings and treat other people respectfully.

You are welcome to criticize someone else's actions, but such criticism must not degrade into a personal attack or name-calling. To be safe, refrain from making assumptions about the motivations of other people. For example, "That's a lie" implies an intentional prevarication, and "So-and-so is a liar" is name-calling. Instead, say "That's not true, because...," or "I think that So-and-so is wrong because..."

Making fun of someone's name or refusing to refer to them by their proper name is also a violation of this guideline. In cases where someone uses a different on-air name, please use that name unless they have specifically said that it's all right to refer to them publicly by their real name.

Note that this guideline covers everyone you talk about in your postings, whether they are participants in this group or not.

3.3 Posting form

Any article that falls into any of the following categories will be automatically rejected:

A) Articles that contain original text of more than 75 characters per line (except for URLs; see sections 3.7 and 3.8)
B) Articles that are crossposted other than as described in section 4.1)
C) Articles that contain more than 400 lines
D) Postings that contain attachments (except short .sig files; see section 3.6)
E) Postings that include encoded binary files (except PGP and other short digital signatures)
F) Articles containing obscene language
G) Articles from individuals who have been suspended or banned from the newsgroup
H) Articles that consist mostly of direct quotation from copyrighted sources (also see section 3.7)

3.4 Excessive quoting

Posters must show a reasonable effort to trim the post they are replying to. Replies should include just enough of the original material to establish a context for your own comments.

Posts more than 20 lines long that have more than 50% quoted text will be carefully reviewed by a moderator to determine whether that degree of quoting is warranted. Posts with excessive quoted text may be rejected.

IMPORTANT: If you use a newsreader (such as Google Groups) that allows you to hide the posting to which you are replying, you must unhide the quoted text and trim it appropriately. Also be certain that your newsreader is not configured to automatically append the previous article to the bottom of your postings. All participants in rec.radio.broadcasting are responsible for using their news-readers properly to comply with the group's posting guidelines.

"Me too!" posts are discouraged. If you do post such a message, you must edit the quoted material significantly.

3.5 Pseudonyms

Contributors to rec.radio.broadcasting are encouraged to use their real (given or on-air) names. This not only creates a greater sense of community in the newsgroup, it also lends credibility to posters' opinions. However, as a pragmatic concession to the realities of the present-day Internet, and consistent with the practices of other moderated newsgroups, pseudonyms and unroutable email address are permitted with some restrictions.

We ask that the From: lines of submitted articles not misrepresent your identity, not be changed often, and not match a user or domain name other than your own (spoofing). Postings that have a pseudonym that violates any of our other rules (such as civility) will be rejected.

Please realize that if you use an unroutable email address, you will not be able to receive acknowledgment or rejection messages for your submitted articles. If one of your articles was rejected and you are unable to receive the notice that explains the rejection, you will need to send a note to the moderation team for clarification.

3.6 Signature files

Many people close each article they write with a few lines of common text. This may be a clever quote, contact information, or disclaimer required by their employer. Signature (.sig) files attached to rec.radio.broadcasting postings must be no longer than four lines plus a standard delimiter (such as two dashes).

The content of a poster's signature need not be relevant to broadcasting, but it must not violate any of the other posting guidelines. (For example, name-calling that would not be acceptable in the body of a message is also unacceptable in a signature.) Posters may include Uniform Resource Locators (URLs) and business addresses in signature files, provided they comply with all the other guidelines regarding signatures.

3.7 Use of copyrighted material

Unless you own the copyright yourself or have the written permission of the copyright owner (either of which must be so stated), do not post copyrighted material such as newspaper articles to rec.radio.broadcasting. Instead, post a synopsis of the material with a link to the full article. If you are posting a link to a blog or other site where information changes frequently, please use a "permalink" to the exact article you're citing.

Quoting of public domain information, such as radio station information from the FCC database, is fine.

3.8 Pointers to outside sources

Unsolicited announcements and pointers to web sites that are exclusively advertisements or other public relations campaigns are not permitted. However, a pointer to a website or other external source of information is permitted and encouraged in cases where it is relevant to an existing thread, with appropriate context being given in the post.

A URL with no information about what a user should expect to find there will be rejected. If you are posting a link to a blog or other site where information changes frequently, please use a

"permalink" to the exact article you're citing. Also, we prefer full URLs instead of (or in addition to) ones that have been modified by a link shortener so that readers of the posting will know which website they are actually going to. If you do use a link shortener, please also indicate the full name of the website to which you are linking.

A pointer to information that is off-charter for rec.radio.broadcasting will be rejected, as will a pointer which itself does not meet the rec.radio.broadcasting guidelines (such as a URL containing name-calling).

Moderators are not responsible for verifying the contents of any external information source. Moderators only review submissions for adherence to the RRB guidelines, such as appropriateness of topic and Usenet etiquette.

4.1 Crossposting

A limited amount of appropriate simultaneous crossposting will be permitted at the discretion of the moderation team. Appropriate crossposted newsgroups could include rec.radio.noncomm, ba.broadcast, ba.broadcast.moderated, or alt.radio.broadcasting. Currently, a limit of 3 newsgroups total is enforced by our moderation software.

Please note that, because of the way moderated Usenet groups work, any posting submitted to a moderated group will not be forwarded to any other groups until it is accepted by the initial group. For example, if you submit a posting to both RRB and BAB, and we reject it, it will never appear on BAB.

4.2 Valid "From" address

Participants in rec.radio.broadcasting may, if they wish, use an invalid or "munged" email address in their "From" header line. However, please be aware that if you do so, you will be unable to receive messages from the moderators, such as requests to revise submitted postings or explanations of why postings were rejected.

Also, we want rec.radio.broadcasting to promote interaction among participants, and in some cases, information is more appropriately relayed off-list. If you do not provide a valid email address, other posters will not be able to send you information, ask questions, etc. Therefore, if you are considering using an invalid "From" address in order to avoid spam email, we recommend that you instead (1) find an ISP with robust spam-filtering for incoming email, and/or (2) obtain an email address just for your Usenet postings (e.g. from Yahoo or Gmail).

4.3 Lost or rejected postings

We never reject anything in silence, and we make a point to answer all our mail. However, newsgroup postings can and do get lost every now and again.

If you send us a posting and you neither see it in RRB nor hear from us directly within two or three days, you can be pretty sure that either your mail never reached us, or that our answer never reached you. (See section 4.2 for why the latter might happen.) In that case, please submit your article again. (We will filter out duplicates.) You're also welcome to send a note to rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com if you have any concerns about your submissions not being received.

If you have any questions or comments about these guidelines, please send a message to rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com.

(Adapted from the rec.radio.amateur.moderated posting guidelines and from Bill Pfeiffer's original RRB guidelines and FAQ.)

4. The best AM receiver

The best AM receiver

Answering the question of "What's the best AM receiver/tuner I can get" is contingent on your definition as to what "best" means. If you want the best quality audio from local stations with a good antenna and ground, the old crystal radio is still the best.

For the uninitiated, a "crystal radio" has nothing to do with a crystal in the modern sense, the resonant piece of quartz used to define frequency in RF circuits including most every computer in existence. Crystal tuning for receivers and transmitters goes back to the twenties or thirties, but in this context we mean a crystal detector,i.e., a semiconductor diode, called a "crystal" because in the old days it consisted of a fine wire poked onto a chunk of lead pyrite or some other rock so that the wire or needle and rock formed a semiconducting PN junction. The actual tuning is done with LC circuits, traditionally made from a coil wound on a Quaker Oats container or similar. With a good antenna and ground, you could pick up enough RF so when the modulated signal was detected it would directly drive a pair of the old high impedance watchcase headphones. No battery was needed: it worked for free. All the energy used to drive the diaphragms of the headset came from the transmitter, tens, hundreds, perhaps under ideal conditions thousands of miles away.

A surprising amount of energy can be had this way. Within a few miles of a 50 kW daytimer or clear channel station, enough actual power can be developed-with the right RF and output matching- to light a flashlight bulb and certainly a LED. In fact, Klipsch used to have a demonstrator radio that would drive the midrange horn of a Klipschhorn or similar and provide a surprisingly loud signal in the room. At night one could listen to several stations in most cities almost as loudly as a nine-volt-powered transistor portable could play, and with better fidelity.

Of course, with enough power, an inadvertent crystal set can be accidentally assembled with humorous consequences-such as the elderly couple who complained that when Howard Stern was on the local station, sounds surprisingly resembling penis, vagina, and Baba Booey would emanate from the tub of their washing machine-or tragic ones such as the occasional premature dynamite explosion on a road project when some trucker with a 'foot warmer' keys his trusty CB rig.

A crystal radio, then is a passive, tuned-radio-frequency RF tuner. If the output were plugged into a good high impedance amplifier, the result is audio amplified as loud as we want it, just like any other line level audio source. In the beginning days of high fidelity, the RF coil houses like Miller introduced passive AM tuners that were nothing more than the old crystal radio. Because of the gain in a good preamp and power amplifier, you got good results in many cases with only a small antenna. Sensitivity and selectivity were not of the highest order, but with a good local station without much interference, the fidelity was superb. And, it still is. These passive AM tuners can still be found fairly cheaply or you can build one yourself, like generations of boys did in the past.

If on the other hand, you want broadcast band overall DX capability, you can either buy a serious communications receiver, or the next best thing-an old car AM radio converted to work at home. By the end of WWII, car radios were generally better radios than their domestic counterparts. They had to be, because of the environment they worked in. This was true until AM functionality came to be regarded as just a legacy as compared to FM performance around the early 1980s, at which time they cheapened the AM sections of the radios.

You want an AM only set for best Am performance. Either tube or solid state sets will work fine, but avoid like monkey plague the GM hybrid radios with 12 volt plate supply tubes and transistor output. Avoid Wonderbar or other auto tune radios: in fact a non-push-button set is best if you can find one made by Delco, Philco Ford or other Big 3 supplier. Avoid most aftermarket or foreign radios: the only ones any good are Blaupunkts or Beckers worth a lot to VW or Mercedes buffs. Overall, I think Delcos are the best. YMMV.

Needless to say, avoid ones with tape players, CB radios or the like. The cheapening started before digital came out, so avoid digital units entirely. You want either a 1947-1955 tube set or a 1964-1975 or so solid state one.

In the case of the solid state set you just need a 12.6 volt DC supply. These can be bought or built. It does not need to be regulated but it should be pretty quiet.

Tube sets can be run the same way, but it's inefficient. Instead, remove or disconnect the stock vibrator, power transformer and rectifier and provide a B+ supply with a conventional HV transformer, diodes and filter caps. You will also need a 6.3 or 12.6 volt heater supply of course. Generally, the limiting sonic factor is the stock output transformer, which you will want to replace with a larger and heavier one for a single ended amp using whatever tube is in there, usually a 6V6.

Most of the pure tube sets are for 6 volt supply, meaning they'll have 6 volt heater tubes, but some were 12 volt for the few cars and trucks that were 12 volt before the hybrid and full transistor sets came in. Usually those just have a different power transformer and use 12 versus 6 volt heater tubes. In some cases they seriesed the heaters on the small signal tubes and just used a 12V6, or used other odd arrangements. Almost always the filaments were run directly off the DC supply though.

If you post about a local radio station or personality, please realize that most RRB readers will know little or nothing about that station or person, so please include a little background to set the context for your remarks.

2.3 Examples of unacceptable topics

This is not a comprehensive list. Please contact the moderation team if you aren't sure whether your proposed topic is appropriate or not.

* Non-domestic stations and activities (BBC World, Voice of America, SWLing, etc.)
* Non-broadcast radio services (amateur, Internet, satellite, etc.)
* Television broadcasting (except on rare occasions when the subject of the posting would also be of broad interest to radio people).

2.4 Programming discussions

Because the intent of RRB is to foster discussion, postings of a primarily promotional nature should be kept to a minimum. Program hosts and other interested parties are welcome to submit brief notices about special guests, fill-in hosts, etc. However, playlists, weekly program schedules, and similar listings should instead be posted in a more appropriate venue, such as the station's or host's website.

Reviews of the performance of on-air personalities are fine, but please note that rec.radio.broadcasting is not the place to discuss the topics of radio talk shows. (Unless the topic itself is the art, science, or business of radio broadcasting.)

Postings about broadcasters' off-air activities should usually be confined to events that are that are related to their broadcast career, such as personal appearances on behalf of their station. Exceptions will be made for extraordinary events such as a broadcaster's death.

2.5 Commercial postings

Businesses and individuals today have a wealth of online selling venues--both general sites such as eBay and Craigslist, and region-specific Usenet groups such as ba.broadcast and uk.tech.broadcast. Therefore, RRB may not be the most effective place to post your for-sale ad. It's best when you want to offer an item that's likely to be of interest to broadcasters or radio fans over a broad geographical area. Please consider the alternatives before submitting your posting to RRB.

Examples of suitable for-sale postings might include, "My station just got a new mixer and is selling its old Acme Model 100; please contact me directly for details," or "I just found a box of KHJ aircheck tapes in my basement; drop me a note if you're interested in buying them."

For-sale message must solicit responses directly to the poster; do not direct readers to another site such as Craigslist or eBay.

Notices about especially important or interesting new products are fine. Please disclose whether or not you have a financial interest in the manufacturer or reseller you're mentioning.

Each poster to RRB is allowed one commercial posting per month.

Postings about job openings are welcomed. Be sure to include your real name, company name, and valid contact information (email address, phone number, or mailing address).

2.6 Pirate radio

Postings about unlicensed domestic radio operations should be limited to discussions of their history, notices of enforcement actions, discussions of technical conflicts between licensed and unlicensed stations, or strictly informational messages (such as, "A pirate station has been heard in Chicago on 104.7"). Postings that seek to support pirate stations (such as by drawing money, personnel, equipment, or listeners) will not be approved.

2.7 Moderation policies

Questions or complaints about moderation decisions or policies will not be permitted in the newsgroup itself. Please direct any such feedback to the moderators by sending us a message at rec-

radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com.

If you see an obviously inappropriate article in our newsgroup, please assume that it was a mistake or a direct forgery, and do not send follow-up postings. You may submit feedback to the administrative address regarding such articles, although it is likely that our monitoring software and procedures have already detected the problem and we are actively handling it.

3. NETIQUETTE

3.1 Introduction to Usenet netiquette

Participants who are new to Usenet should familiarize themselves with the "netiquette" of Usenet as well as the particular posting guidelines for this group. Several useful posts for "newbies" can be found on the newsgroup news.announce.newusers or on the World Wide Web at:

http://www.faqs.org/faqs/by-newsgroup/news/news.announce.newusers.html

Particularly helpful articles are:

3.2 Civility

Participants in rec.radio.broadcasting are encouraged to state their own views and share their experiences enthusiastically. However, in doing so, you should maintain a civil tone in all postings and treat other people respectfully.

You are welcome to criticize someone else's actions, but such criticism must not degrade into a personal attack or name-calling. To be safe, refrain from making assumptions about the motivations of other people. For example, "That's a lie" implies an intentional prevarication, and "So-and-so is a liar" is name-calling. Instead, say "That's not true, because...," or "I think that So-and-so is wrong because..."

Making fun of someone's name or refusing to refer to them by their proper name is also a violation of this guideline. In cases where someone uses a different on-air name, please use that name unless they have specifically said that it's all right to refer to them publicly by their real name.

Note that this guideline covers everyone you talk about in your postings, whether they are participants in this group or not.

3.3 Posting form

Any article that falls into any of the following categories will be automatically rejected:

A) Articles that contain original text of more than 75 characters per line (except for URLs; see sections 3.7 and 3.8)
B) Articles that are crossposted other than as described in section 4.1)
C) Articles that contain more than 400 lines
D) Postings that contain attachments (except short .sig files; see section 3.6)
E) Postings that include encoded binary files (except PGP and other short digital signatures)
F) Articles containing obscene language
G) Articles from individuals who have been suspended or banned from the newsgroup
H) Articles that consist mostly of direct quotation from copyrighted sources (also see section 3.7)

3.4 Excessive quoting

Posters must show a reasonable effort to trim the post they are replying to. Replies should include just enough of the original material to establish a context for your own comments.

Posts more than 20 lines long that have more than 50% quoted text will be carefully reviewed by a moderator to determine whether that degree of quoting is warranted. Posts with excessive quoted text may be rejected.

IMPORTANT: If you use a newsreader (such as Google Groups) that allows you to hide the posting to which you are replying, you must unhide the quoted text and trim it appropriately. Also be certain that your newsreader is not configured to automatically append the previous article to the bottom of your postings. All participants in rec.radio.broadcasting are responsible for using their news-readers properly to comply with the group's posting guidelines.

"Me too!" posts are discouraged. If you do post such a message, you must edit the quoted material significantly.

3.5 Pseudonyms

Contributors to rec.radio.broadcasting are encouraged to use their real (given or on-air) names. This not only creates a greater sense of community in the newsgroup, it also lends credibility to posters' opinions. However, as a pragmatic concession to the realities of the present-day Internet, and consistent with the practices of other moderated newsgroups, pseudonyms and unroutable email address are permitted with some restrictions.

We ask that the From: lines of submitted articles not misrepresent your identity, not be changed often, and not match a user or domain name other than your own (spoofing). Postings that have a pseudonym that violates any of our other rules (such as civility) will be rejected.

Please realize that if you use an unroutable email address, you will not be able to receive acknowledgment or rejection messages for your submitted articles. If one of your articles was rejected and you are unable to receive the notice that explains the rejection, you will need to send a note to the moderation team for clarification.

3.6 Signature files

Many people close each article they write with a few lines of common text. This may be a clever quote, contact information, or disclaimer required by their employer. Signature (.sig) files attached to rec.radio.broadcasting postings must be no longer than four lines plus a standard delimiter (such as two dashes).

The content of a poster's signature need not be relevant to broadcasting, but it must not violate any of the other posting guidelines. (For example, name-calling that would not be acceptable in the body of a message is also unacceptable in a signature.) Posters may include Uniform Resource Locators (URLs) and business addresses in signature files, provided they comply with all the other guidelines regarding signatures.

3.7 Use of copyrighted material

Unless you own the copyright yourself or have the written permission of the copyright owner (either of which must be so stated), do not post copyrighted material such as newspaper articles to rec.radio.broadcasting. Instead, post a synopsis of the material with a link to the full article. If you are posting a link to a blog or other site where information changes frequently, please use a "permalink" to the exact article you're citing.

Quoting of public domain information, such as radio station information from the FCC database, is fine.

3.8 Pointers to outside sources

Unsolicited announcements and pointers to web sites that are exclusively advertisements or other public relations campaigns are not permitted. However, a pointer to a website or other external source of information is permitted and encouraged in cases where it is relevant to an existing thread, with appropriate context being given in the post.

A URL with no information about what a user should expect to find there will be rejected. If you are posting a link to a blog or other site where information changes frequently, please use a

"permalink" to the exact article you're citing. Also, we prefer full URLs instead of (or in addition to) ones that have been modified by a link shortener so that readers of the posting will know which website they are actually going to. If you do use a link shortener, please also indicate the full name of the website to which you are linking.

A pointer to information that is off-charter for rec.radio.broadcasting will be rejected, as will a pointer which itself does not meet the rec.radio.broadcasting guidelines (such as a URL containing name-calling).

Moderators are not responsible for verifying the contents of any external information source. Moderators only review submissions for adherence to the RRB guidelines, such as appropriateness of topic and Usenet etiquette.

4. TECHNICAL AND ADMINISTRATIVE ISSUES

4.1 Crossposting

A limited amount of appropriate simultaneous crossposting will be permitted at the discretion of the moderation team. Appropriate crossposted newsgroups could include rec.radio.noncomm, ba.broadcast, ba.broadcast.moderated, or alt.radio.broadcasting. Currently, a limit of 3 newsgroups total is enforced by our moderation software.

Please note that, because of the way moderated Usenet groups work, any posting submitted to a moderated group will not be forwarded to any other groups until it is accepted by the initial group. For example, if you submit a posting to both RRB and BAB, and we reject it, it will never appear on BAB.

4.2 Valid "From" address

Participants in rec.radio.broadcasting may, if they wish, use an invalid or "munged" email address in their "From" header line. However, please be aware that if you do so, you will be unable to receive messages from the moderators, such as requests to revise submitted postings or explanations of why postings were rejected.

Also, we want rec.radio.broadcasting to promote interaction among participants, and in some cases, information is more appropriately relayed off-list. If you do not provide a valid email address, other posters will not be able to send you information, ask questions, etc. Therefore, if you are considering using an invalid "From" address in order to avoid spam email, we recommend that you instead (1) find an ISP with robust spam-filtering for incoming email, and/or (2) obtain an email address just for your Usenet postings (e.g. from Yahoo or Gmail).

4.3 Lost or rejected postings

We never reject anything in silence, and we make a point to answer all our mail. However, newsgroup postings can and do get lost every now and again.

If you send us a posting and you neither see it in RRB nor hear from us directly within two or three days, you can be pretty sure that either your mail never reached us, or that our answer never reached you. (See section 4.2 for why the latter might happen.) In that case, please submit your article again. (We will filter out duplicates.) You're also welcome to send a note to rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com if you have any concerns about your submissions not being received.

If you have any questions or comments about these guidelines, please send a message to rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com.

(Adapted from the rec.radio.amateur.moderated posting guidelines and from Bill Pfeiffer's original RRB guidelines and FAQ.)

A friendly reminder: while it is acceptable under the posting guidelines for rec.radio.broadcasting to use "munged" e-mail addresses as the originating address for your posts, please keep the following in mind:

1) Readers wishing to reply to you directly won't be able to do so without manually removing "SPAM" or whatever other word you've used in your address, and

2) If your post is rejected by the moderation team, you won't receive a rejection message. The software that we use assumes the e-mail address of the poster as the correct e-mail address.

Most posts are approved within a day. If your post hasn't appeared, and if you have not received a rejection message, please first consider whether you have used an incorrect, non-working e-mail address. Then please consider whether you wish to resubmit your post using an actual, working e-mail address. If that post is rejected, then we will be able to send a rejection message to you and then you will have an explanation of the issue or problem to which you may follow up as you would like.

Thank you,
the rec.radio.broadcasting moderation team

1. INTRODUCTION

1.1 Invitation to participate
The moderators of rec.radio.broadcasting (RRB) invite the participation of broadcast professionals and non-professionals alike. Both the people who operate radio stations and the people who listen to them have valuable insights into the art, business, and/or science of broadcasting.

1.2 Charter

Rec.radio broadcasting is intended as a worldwide forum dedicated to the discussion of subjects pertaining to domestic radio broadcasting. By the term "domestic," we mean radio which is intended basically for reception within the country in which it originates. Other Usenet groups are available for discussing international broadcast services.

1.3 How to submit articles

You can use your newsreading software to submit an article to rec.radio.broadcasting as you would to any other newsgroup. The only difference is that your news server will automatically forward your article to the moderation team instead of posting it directly to the group. Alternatively, you can email submissions to rec-radio-broadcasting@panix.com. We generally turn around articles at least the same day, usually much faster.

2. ACCEPTABLE AND UNACCEPTABLE TOPICS

If you are ever unsure about whether a proposed topic is appropriate for RRB, please feel free to ask the moderation team at:

rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com

2.1 Newsgroup focus

RRB is designed to provide a public forum for professional and informed discussion and dissemination of information pertaining to the art, business, and science of radio broadcasting. By "professional and informed," we mean discussions by broadcast professionals as well as those with a serious interest in radio broadcasting. As mentioned in the Introduction, we welcome the participation of radio listeners as well as those inside the industry.

RRB is an international newsgroup, so the term "domestic" should not be taken to imply just the United States or North America. Readers in other nations are encouraged to post questions and comments about their own country's radio stations.

2.2 Examples of acceptable topics

Generally, if a subject would be of interest to broadcast professionals or listeners, it is acceptable. Here are just a few ideas for discussion topics:

* New stations and changes to existing stations (but see section 2.6 for limitations on discussions of unlicensed stations)
* Formats and programming
* Equipment and techniques involved in the transmission and reception of broadcast radio signals
* Other engineering and technical matters
* Domestic broadcast-band DXing
* Community broadcasting
* Legislation affecting radio stations
* Radio's current and future trends
* Job openings and help to those seeking work in the industry

If you post about a local radio station or personality, please realize that most RRB readers will know little or nothing about that station or person, so please include a little background to set the context for your remarks.

2.3 Examples of unacceptable topics

This is not a comprehensive list. Please contact the moderation team if you aren't sure whether your proposed topic is appropriate or not.

* Non-domestic stations and activities (BBC World, Voice of America, SWLing, etc.)
* Non-broadcast radio services (amateur, Internet, satellite, etc.)
* Television broadcasting (except on rare occasions when the subject of the posting would also be of broad interest to radio people).

2.4 Programming discussions

Because the intent of RRB is to foster discussion, postings of a primarily promotional nature should be kept to a minimum. Program hosts and other interested parties are welcome to submit brief notices about special guests, fill-in hosts, etc. However, playlists, weekly program schedules, and similar listings should instead be posted in a more appropriate venue, such as the station's or host's website.

Reviews of the performance of on-air personalities are fine, but please note that rec.radio.broadcasting is not the place to discuss the topics of radio talk shows. (Unless the topic itself is the art, science, or business of radio broadcasting.)

Postings about broadcasters' off-air activities should usually be confined to events that are that are related to their broadcast career, such as personal appearances on behalf of their station. Exceptions will be made for extraordinary events such as a broadcaster's death.

2.5 Commercial postings

Businesses and individuals today have a wealth of online selling venues--both general sites such as eBay and Craigslist, and region-specific Usenet groups such as ba.broadcast and uk.tech.broadcast. Therefore, RRB may not be the most effective place to post your for-sale ad. It's best when you want to offer an item that's likely to be of interest to broadcasters or radio fans over a broad geographical area. Please consider the alternatives before submitting your posting to RRB.

Examples of suitable for-sale postings might include, "My station just got a new mixer and is selling its old Acme Model 100; please contact me directly for details," or "I just found a box of KHJ aircheck tapes in my basement; drop me a note if you're interested in buying them."

For-sale message must solicit responses directly to the poster; do not direct readers to another site such as Craigslist or eBay.

Notices about especially important or interesting new products are fine. Please disclose whether or not you have a financial interest in the manufacturer or reseller you're mentioning.

Each poster to RRB is allowed one commercial posting per month.

Postings about job openings are welcomed. Be sure to include your real name, company name, and valid contact information (email address, phone number, or mailing address).

2.6 Pirate radio

Postings about unlicensed domestic radio operations should be limited to discussions of their history, notices of enforcement actions, discussions of technical conflicts between licensed and unlicensed stations, or strictly informational messages (such as, "A pirate station has been heard in Chicago on 104.7"). Postings that seek to support pirate stations (such as by drawing money, personnel, equipment, or listeners) will not be approved.

2.7 Moderation policies

Questions or complaints about moderation decisions or policies will not be permitted in the newsgroup itself. Please direct any such feedback to the moderators by sending us a message at rec-

radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com.

If you see an obviously inappropriate article in our newsgroup, please assume that it was a mistake or a direct forgery, and do not send follow-up postings. You may submit feedback to the administrative address regarding such articles, although it is likely that our monitoring software and procedures have already detected the problem and we are actively handling it.

4. TECHNICAL AND ADMINISTRATIVE ISSUES

4.1 Crossposting

A limited amount of appropriate simultaneous crossposting will be permitted at the discretion of the moderation team. Appropriate crossposted newsgroups could include rec.radio.noncomm, ba.broadcast, ba.broadcast.moderated, or alt.radio.broadcasting. Currently, a limit of 3 newsgroups total is enforced by our moderation software.

Please note that, because of the way moderated Usenet groups work, any posting submitted to a moderated group will not be forwarded to any other groups until it is accepted by the initial group. For example, if you submit a posting to both RRB and BAB, and we reject it, it will never appear on BAB.

4.2 Valid "From" address

Participants in rec.radio.broadcasting may, if they wish, use an invalid or "munged" email address in their "From" header line. However, please be aware that if you do so, you will be unable to receive messages from the moderators, such as requests to revise submitted postings or explanations of why postings were rejected.

Also, we want rec.radio.broadcasting to promote interaction among participants, and in some cases, information is more appropriately relayed off-list. If you do not provide a valid email address, other posters will not be able to send you information, ask questions, etc. Therefore, if you are considering using an invalid "From" address in order to avoid spam email, we recommend that you instead (1) find an ISP with robust spam-filtering for incoming email, and/or (2) obtain an email address just for your Usenet postings (e.g. from Yahoo or Gmail).

4.3 Lost or rejected postings

We never reject anything in silence, and we make a point to answer all our mail. However, newsgroup postings can and do get lost every now and again.

If you send us a posting and you neither see it in RRB nor hear from us directly within two or three days, you can be pretty sure that either your mail never reached us, or that our answer never reached you. (See section 4.2 for why the latter might happen.) In that case, please submit your article again. (We will filter out duplicates.) You're also welcome to send a note to rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com if you have any concerns about your submissions not being received.

If you have any questions or comments about these guidelines, please send a message to rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com.

(Adapted from the rec.radio.amateur.moderated posting guidelines and from Bill Pfeiffer's original RRB guidelines and FAQ.)

The Fybush posts are wonderful. Perhaps there are other national posts that can be generated. Such as the NATIONAL FCC change feed. Perhaps an RSS of other radio/TV sites such as radio-info.com or monitoringtimes.com or popcomm.com or DCTV.com or perhaps a Google news feed of radio or shortwave or broadcasting. There are many radio aggregator sites that focus on broadcasting for a certain area.

There has to be a number of ways to generate posts to this group that would be truly informative content in addition to Fybush...which is good of course.

Thanks

Thank you, Joe, we're glad that you're enjoying Scott's reports.

We have investigated a few other feeds; some have allowed us to

The editors of the radio-info.com and radioworld.com sites have both declined to have rec.radio.broadcasting forward daily RSS feeds of their news articles.

One of the challenges of other possible news feeds is to keep them mostly confined to broadcast radio, and not TV or shortwave or scanner listening. The dcrtv.com site is really great for Washington DC area broadcasting news, but as far as I know, does not support RSS. Sites might be interested in allowing rec.radio.broadcasting to abstract their feeds (either Fair Use or something close to it), and RSS is usually the best and easiest way to abstract updates at web sites automatically.

There are at two profiled feeds of the FCC Daily Digests to newsgroups that I know of. One for amateur radio (Part 97) information, the other for radio and TV broadcasting in the Bay Area of California (San Francisco, San Jose, etc.). Tracking FCC actions for all broadcast radio stations nationwide could be quite voluminous and noisy. What kinds of pattern matches would you propose be profiled for rec.radio.broadcasting? New stations? Significant enforcement actions?
Sometimes that's hard to do in a way that is useful and manageable for the readership without a lot of reading and manual culling by an editor.
We might need an interested volunteer.

>There has to be a number of ways to generate posts to this group that >would be truly informative content in addition to Fybush...which is

>Thanks

The original moderator of this newsgroup, the late Bill Pfeiffer, coordinated a "Radio Watchers" program, where individuals around the country, and world, would follow radio stations in their markets, and sometimes surrounding regions, and report back to rec.radio.broadcasting. Scott Fybush, the author of the Fybush Media articles, was one of the original Radio Watchers, for the northeastern

U.S., and is probably one of the few remaining who continue to provide updates to the net.

Given that the moderation system for rec.radio.broadcasting can support several automated options, including posting from newsreaders, E-mail submissions, web site scraping, and now RSS, it would appear that it might be technically easier to capture and post the information, even automatically. What would be the remaining challenge would be to find good sites that would consent to relay of their material, and good watchers to submit their own local observations and analysis.

1. INTRODUCTION

1.1 Invitation to participate
The moderators of rec.radio.broadcasting (RRB) invite the participation of broadcast professionals and non-professionals alike. Both the people who operate radio stations and the people who listen to them have valuable insights into the art, business, and/or science of broadcasting.

1.2 Charter

Rec.radio broadcasting is intended as a worldwide forum dedicated to the discussion of subjects pertaining to domestic radio broadcasting. By the term "domestic," we mean radio which is intended basically for reception within the country in which it originates. Other Usenet groups are available for discussing international broadcast services.

1.3 How to submit articles

You can use your newsreading software to submit an article to rec.radio.broadcasting as you would to any other newsgroup. The only difference is that your news server will automatically forward your article to the moderation team instead of posting it directly to the group. Alternatively, you can email submissions to rec-radio-broadcasting@panix.com. We generally turn around articles at least the same day, usually much faster.

2. ACCEPTABLE AND UNACCEPTABLE TOPICS

If you are ever unsure about whether a proposed topic is appropriate for RRB, please feel free to ask the moderation team at:

rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com

2.1 Newsgroup focus

RRB is designed to provide a public forum for professional and informed discussion and dissemination of information pertaining to the art, business, and science of radio broadcasting. By "professional and informed," we mean discussions by broadcast professionals as well as those with a serious interest in radio broadcasting. As mentioned in the Introduction, we welcome the participation of radio listeners as well as those inside the industry.

RRB is an international newsgroup, so the term "domestic" should not be taken to imply just the United States or North America. Readers in other nations are encouraged to post questions and comments about their own country's radio stations.

2.2 Examples of acceptable topics

Generally, if a subject would be of interest to broadcast professionals or listeners, it is acceptable. Here are just a few ideas for discussion topics:

* New stations and changes to existing stations (but see section 2.6 for limitations on discussions of unlicensed stations)
* Formats and programming
* Equipment and techniques involved in the transmission and reception of broadcast radio signals
* Other engineering and technical matters
* Domestic broadcast-band DXing
* Community broadcasting
* Legislation affecting radio stations
* Radio's current and future trends
* Job openings and help to those seeking work in the industry

If you post about a local radio station or personality, please realize that most RRB readers will know little or nothing about that station or person, so please include a little background to set the context for your remarks.

2.3 Examples of unacceptable topics

This is not a comprehensive list. Please contact the moderation team if you aren't sure whether your proposed topic is appropriate or not.

* Non-domestic stations and activities (BBC World, Voice of America, SWLing, etc.)
* Non-broadcast radio services (amateur, Internet, satellite, etc.)
* Television broadcasting (except on rare occasions when the subject of the posting would also be of broad interest to radio people).

2.4 Programming discussions

Because the intent of RRB is to foster discussion, postings of a primarily promotional nature should be kept to a minimum. Program hosts and other interested parties are welcome to submit brief notices about special guests, fill-in hosts, etc. However, playlists, weekly program schedules, and similar listings should instead be posted in a more appropriate venue, such as the station's or host's website.

Reviews of the performance of on-air personalities are fine, but please note that rec.radio.broadcasting is not the place to discuss the topics of radio talk shows. (Unless the topic itself is the art, science, or business of radio broadcasting.)

Postings about broadcasters' off-air activities should usually be confined to events that are that are related to their broadcast career, such as personal appearances on behalf of their station. Exceptions will be made for extraordinary events such as a broadcaster's death.

2.5 Commercial postings

Businesses and individuals today have a wealth of online selling venues--both general sites such as eBay and Craigslist, and region-specific Usenet groups such as ba.broadcast and uk.tech.broadcast. Therefore, RRB may not be the most effective place to post your for-sale ad. It's best when you want to offer an item that's likely to be of interest to broadcasters or radio fans over a broad geographical area. Please consider the alternatives before submitting your posting to RRB.

Examples of suitable for-sale postings might include, "My station just got a new mixer and is selling its old Acme Model 100; please contact me directly for details," or "I just found a box of KHJ aircheck tapes in my basement; drop me a note if you're interested in buying them."

For-sale message must solicit responses directly to the poster; do not direct readers to another site such as Craigslist or eBay.

Notices about especially important or interesting new products are fine. Please disclose whether or not you have a financial interest in the manufacturer or reseller you're mentioning.

Each poster to RRB is allowed one commercial posting per month.

Postings about job openings are welcomed. Be sure to include your real name, company name, and valid contact information (email address, phone number, or mailing address).

2.6 Pirate radio

Postings about unlicensed domestic radio operations should be limited to discussions of their history, notices of enforcement actions, discussions of technical conflicts between licensed and unlicensed stations, or strictly informational messages (such as, "A pirate station has been heard in Chicago on 104.7"). Postings that seek to support pirate stations (such as by drawing money, personnel, equipment, or listeners) will not be approved.

2.7 Moderation policies

Questions or complaints about moderation decisions or policies will not be permitted in the newsgroup itself. Please direct any such feedback to the moderators by sending us a message at rec-

radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com.

If you see an obviously inappropriate article in our newsgroup, please assume that it was a mistake or a direct forgery, and do not send follow-up postings. You may submit feedback to the administrative address regarding such articles, although it is likely that our monitoring software and procedures have already detected the problem and we are actively handling it.

3. NETIQUETTE

3.1 Introduction to Usenet netiquette

Participants who are new to Usenet should familiarize themselves with the "netiquette" of Usenet as well as the particular posting guidelines for this group. Several useful posts for "newbies" can be found on the newsgroup news.announce.newusers or on the World Wide Web at:

http://www.faqs.org/faqs/by-newsgroup/news/
news.announce.newusers.html

Answers to Frequently Asked Questions about Usenet

3.2 Civility

Participants in rec.radio.broadcasting are encouraged to state their own views and share their experiences enthusiastically. However, in doing so, you should maintain a civil tone in all postings and treat other people respectfully.

You are welcome to criticize someone else's actions, but such criticism must not degrade into a personal attack or name-calling. To be safe, refrain from making assumptions about the motivations of other people. For example, "That's a lie" implies an intentional prevarication, and "So-and-so is a liar" is name-calling. Instead, say "That's not true, because...," or "I think that So-and-so is wrong because..."

Making fun of someone's name or refusing to refer to them by their proper name is also a violation of this guideline. In cases where someone uses a different on-air name, please use that name unless they have specifically said that it's all right to refer to them publicly by their real name.

Note that this guideline covers everyone you talk about in your postings, whether they are participants in this group or not.

3.3 Posting form

Any article that falls into any of the following categories will be automatically rejected:

A) Articles that contain original text of more than 75 characters per line (except for URLs; see sections 3.7 and 3.8)
B) Articles that are crossposted other than as described in section 4.1)
C) Articles that contain more than 400 lines
D) Postings that contain attachments (except short .sig files; see section 3.6)
E) Postings that include encoded binary files (except PGP and other short digital signatures)
F) Articles containing obscene language
G) Articles from individuals who have been suspended or banned from the newsgroup
H) Articles that consist mostly of direct quotation from copyrighted sources (also see section 3.7)

3.4 Excessive quoting

Posters must show a reasonable effort to trim the post they are replying to. Replies should include just enough of the original material to establish a context for your own comments.

Posts more than 20 lines long that have more than 50% quoted text will be carefully reviewed by a moderator to determine whether that degree of quoting is warranted. Posts with excessive quoted text may be rejected.

IMPORTANT: If you use a newsreader (such as Google Groups) that allows you to hide the posting to which you are replying, you must unhide the quoted text and trim it appropriately. Also be certain that your newsreader is not configured to automatically append the previous article to the bottom of your postings. All participants in rec.radio.broadcasting are responsible for using their news-readers properly to comply with the group's posting guidelines.

"Me too!" posts are discouraged. If you do post such a message, you must edit the quoted material significantly.

3.5 Pseudonyms

Contributors to rec.radio.broadcasting are encouraged to use their real (given or on-air) names. This not only creates a greater sense of community in the newsgroup, it also lends credibility to posters' opinions. However, as a pragmatic concession to the realities of the present-day Internet, and consistent with the practices of other moderated newsgroups, pseudonyms and unroutable email address are permitted with some restrictions.

We ask that the From: lines of submitted articles not misrepresent your identity, not be changed often, and not match a user or domain name other than your own (spoofing). Postings that have a pseudonym that violates any of our other rules (such as civility) will be rejected.

Please realize that if you use an unroutable email address, you will not be able to receive acknowledgment or rejection messages for your submitted articles. If one of your articles was rejected and you are unable to receive the notice that explains the rejection, you will need to send a note to the moderation team for clarification.

3.6 Signature files

Many people close each article they write with a few lines of common text. This may be a clever quote, contact information, or disclaimer required by their employer. Signature (.sig) files attached to rec.radio.broadcasting postings must be no longer than four lines plus a standard delimiter (such as two dashes).

The content of a poster's signature need not be relevant to broadcasting, but it must not violate any of the other posting guidelines. (For example, name-calling that would not be acceptable in the body of a message is also unacceptable in a signature.) Posters may include Uniform Resource Locators (URLs) and business addresses in signature files, provided they comply with all the other guidelines regarding signatures.

3.7 Use of copyrighted material

Unless you own the copyright yourself or have the written permission of the copyright owner (either of which must be so stated), do not post copyrighted material such as newspaper articles to rec.radio.broadcasting. Instead, post a synopsis of the material with a link to the full article. If you are posting a link to a blog or other site where information changes frequently, please use a "permalink" to the exact article you're citing.

Quoting of public domain information, such as radio station information from the FCC database, is fine.

3.8 Pointers to outside sources

Unsolicited announcements and pointers to web sites that are exclusively advertisements or other public relations campaigns are not permitted. However, a pointer to a website or other external source of information is permitted and encouraged in cases where it is relevant to an existing thread, with appropriate context being given in the post.

A URL with no information about what a user should expect to find there will be rejected. If you are posting a link to a blog or other site where information changes frequently, please use a

"permalink" to the exact article you're citing. Also, we prefer full URLs instead of (or in addition to) ones that have been modified by a link shortener so that readers of the posting will know which website they are actually going to. If you do use a link shortener, please also indicate the full name of the website to which you are linking.

A pointer to information that is off-charter for rec.radio.broadcasting will be rejected, as will a pointer which itself does not meet the rec.radio.broadcasting guidelines (such as a URL containing name-calling).

Moderators are not responsible for verifying the contents of any external information source. Moderators only review submissions for adherence to the RRB guidelines, such as appropriateness of topic and Usenet etiquette.

4. TECHNICAL AND ADMINISTRATIVE ISSUES

4.1 Crossposting

A limited amount of appropriate simultaneous crossposting will be permitted at the discretion of the moderation team. Appropriate crossposted newsgroups could include rec.radio.noncomm, ba.broadcast, ba.broadcast.moderated, or alt.radio.broadcasting. Currently, a limit of 3 newsgroups total is enforced by our moderation software.

Please note that, because of the way moderated Usenet groups work, any posting submitted to a moderated group will not be forwarded to any other groups until it is accepted by the initial group. For example, if you submit a posting to both RRB and BAB, and we reject it, it will never appear on BAB.

4.2 Valid "From" address

Participants in rec.radio.broadcasting may, if they wish, use an invalid or "munged" email address in their "From" header line. However, please be aware that if you do so, you will be unable to receive messages from the moderators, such as requests to revise submitted postings or explanations of why postings were rejected.

Also, we want rec.radio.broadcasting to promote interaction among participants, and in some cases, information is more appropriately relayed off-list. If you do not provide a valid email address, other posters will not be able to send you information, ask questions, etc. Therefore, if you are considering using an invalid "From" address in order to avoid spam email, we recommend that you instead (1) find an ISP with robust spam-filtering for incoming email, and/or (2) obtain an email address just for your Usenet postings (e.g. from Yahoo or Gmail).

4.3 Lost or rejected postings

We never reject anything in silence, and we make a point to answer all our mail. However, newsgroup postings can and do get lost every now and again.

If you send us a posting and you neither see it in RRB nor hear from us directly within two or three days, you can be pretty sure that either your mail never reached us, or that our answer never reached you. (See section 4.2 for why the latter might happen.) In that case, please submit your article again. (We will filter out duplicates.) You're also welcome to send a note to rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com if you have any concerns about your submissions not being received.

If you have any questions or comments about these guidelines, please send a message to rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com.

(Adapted from the rec.radio.amateur.moderated posting guidelines and from Bill Pfeiffer's original RRB guidelines and FAQ.)

71. Independent Recording Artists Are Gaining World Wide Exposure On Broadcast Network For Indie Artists

Newsgroup: rec.radio.broadcasting
Date: 2012-06-20 15:34:10 UTC
From: Art Laurent <artlaurent88@gmail.com>
Message-ID: <39792c91-739d-4c71-8389-18fb277e70cb@eh4g2000vbb.googlegroups.com>

Broadcast Network For Independent Artists (BN4IA) began programming on May 19, 2012 to over 200 terrestrial (over the air) radio stations around the world and five internet radio stations. Since BN4IA began programming, they have picked up additional radio stations including Radio Brandy, which provides programming to over 200 college dorms in the U.S. and Indie 98 FM in Los Angeles and itï¿½s affiliates in over 40 countries. The company also broadcast by satellite to over 25 Million home in North and Central America and this month will begin broadcasting to over 200 Million homes and businesses in Europe and the Middle East. The company broadcasts the music of independent recording artists from around the world on a 24/7 basis.

Independent recording artists who have been added to rotation on the BN4IA include Canadian artist Beatrice Love and her songs ï¿½Cold Shoulderï¿½ and ï¿½Genuineï¿½; Elina Vasiljeva from Latvia and her song ï¿½I Can See Changesï¿½; ï¿½Taken Awayï¿½ by the English band, The Particles; Snez and her song ï¿½Greenï¿½ from Australia and there are an additional 12 independent recording artist from the international market being added by the end of June. U.S. independent recording artists who are receiving song requests include the band Leadership by Assault from Seattle and their song ï¿½Sober Upï¿½ and the song by Cutting Edge called ï¿½Venomous Love Affairï¿½ which also entered the national digital radio charts top 200 last week at #88 and the international independent digital charts at #25. The biggest surprise is the ï¿½fun, quirky, alternativeï¿½ band Naked In Public and their song ï¿½Gray Haired Ladyï¿½; a song about Gray Haired Ladies, of course. BN4IA congratulates Doug Fergus and his band, Naked In Public for having the most requested song of the week.

Most of the recording artists jumping on BN4IA love the idea that the company offers a store on their site so listeners can buy the songs directly from the station as opposed to having to search for the song on the internet. According to Music Director Ricky Ric, ï¿½the bands also love the fact the listeners of the radio network dictate which songs receive the most radio airplay on BN4IAï¿½. Ricky Ric also stated ï¿½some of the bands with the higher rotation are beginning to accomplish this by letting their fans know to do song request and purchase songs at the BN4IA music store each weekï¿½. Bands receive points each time their song is requested or when someone makes a purchase of a song or album. ï¿½It is better to let the listeners dictate what is played on the radio as opposed to having some corporation dictate itï¿½ according to Ricky Ric.

Broadcast Network For Indie Artists was formed by the independent band, Cutting Edge to help independent recording artist around the world to expose their music around the world through the stations of the network. To submit songs to BN4IA or to listen to the station, simply go to http://www.bn4ia.com

You can also listen to BN4IA by going to Shoutcast and entering bn4ia in the search bar.

You can join the Broadcast Network For Indie Artist on Facebook at: https://www.facebook.com/broadcastnetworkforindieartist

4.3 Lost or rejected postings

This is a living document and will be updated as needed to meet the needs of this group.

---

1. INTRODUCTION

1.1 Invitation to participate
The moderators of rec.radio.broadcasting (RRB) invite the participation of broadcast professionals and non-professionals alike. Both the people who operate radio stations and the people who listen to them have valuable insights into the art, business, and/or science of broadcasting.

1.2 Charter

Rec.radio broadcasting is intended as a worldwide forum dedicated to the discussion of subjects pertaining to domestic radio broadcasting. By the term "domestic," we mean radio which is intended basically for reception within the country in which it originates. Other Usenet groups are available for discussing international broadcast services.

1.3 How to submit articles

You can use your newsreading software to submit an article to rec.radio.broadcasting as you would to any other newsgroup. The only difference is that your news server will automatically forward your article to the moderation team instead of posting it directly to the group. Alternatively, you can email submissions to rec-radio-broadcasting@panix.com. We generally turn around articles at least the same day, usually much faster.

---

2. ACCEPTABLE AND UNACCEPTABLE TOPICS

If you are ever unsure about whether a proposed topic is appropriate for RRB, please feel free to ask the moderation team at:

rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com

2.1 Newsgroup focus

RRB is designed to provide a public forum for professional and informed discussion and dissemination of information pertaining to the art, business, and science of radio broadcasting. By "professional and informed," we mean discussions by broadcast professionals as well as those with a serious interest in radio broadcasting. As mentioned in the Introduction, we welcome the participation of radio listeners as well as those inside the industry.

RRB is an international newsgroup, so the term "domestic" should not be taken to imply just the United States or North America. Readers in other nations are encouraged to post questions and comments about their own country's radio stations.

2.2 Examples of acceptable topics

Generally, if a subject would be of interest to broadcast professionals or listeners, it is acceptable. Here are just a few ideas for discussion topics:

* New stations and changes to existing stations (but see section 2.6 for limitations on discussions of unlicensed stations)
* Formats and programming
* Equipment and techniques involved in the transmission and reception of broadcast radio signals
* Other engineering and technical matters
* Domestic broadcast-band DXing
* Community broadcasting
* Legislation affecting radio stations
* Radio's current and future trends
* Job openings and help to those seeking work in the industry

If you post about a local radio station or personality, please realize that most RRB readers will know little or nothing about that station or person, so please include a little background to set the context for your remarks.

2.3 Examples of unacceptable topics

This is not a comprehensive list. Please contact the moderation team if you aren't sure whether your proposed topic is appropriate or not.

* Non-domestic stations and activities (BBC World, Voice of America, SWLing, etc.)
* Non-broadcast radio services (amateur, Internet, satellite, etc.)
* Television broadcasting (except on rare occasions when the subject of the posting would also be of broad interest to radio people).

2.4 Programming discussions

Because the intent of RRB is to foster discussion, postings of a primarily promotional nature should be kept to a minimum. Program hosts and other interested parties are welcome to submit brief notices about special guests, fill-in hosts, etc. However, playlists, weekly program schedules, and similar listings should instead be posted in a more appropriate venue, such as the station's or host's website.

Reviews of the performance of on-air personalities are fine, but please note that rec.radio.broadcasting is not the place to discuss the topics of radio talk shows. (Unless the topic itself is the art, science, or business of radio broadcasting.)

Postings about broadcasters' off-air activities should usually be confined to events that are that are related to their broadcast career, such as personal appearances on behalf of their station. Exceptions will be made for extraordinary events such as a broadcaster's death.

2.5 Commercial postings

Businesses and individuals today have a wealth of online selling venues--both general sites such as eBay and Craigslist, and region-specific Usenet groups such as ba.broadcast and uk.tech.broadcast. Therefore, RRB may not be the most effective place to post your for-sale ad. It's best when you want to offer an item that's likely to be of interest to broadcasters or radio fans over a broad geographical area. Please consider the alternatives before submitting your posting to RRB.

Examples of suitable for-sale postings might include, "My station just got a new mixer and is selling its old Acme Model 100; please contact me directly for details," or "I just found a box of KHJ aircheck tapes in my basement; drop me a note if you're interested in buying them."

For-sale message must solicit responses directly to the poster; do not direct readers to another site such as Craigslist or eBay.

Notices about especially important or interesting new products are fine. Please disclose whether or not you have a financial interest in the manufacturer or reseller you're mentioning.

Each poster to RRB is allowed one commercial posting per month.

Postings about job openings are welcomed. Be sure to include your real name, company name, and valid contact information (email address, phone number, or mailing address).

2.6 Pirate radio

Postings about unlicensed domestic radio operations should be limited to discussions of their history, notices of enforcement actions, discussions of technical conflicts between licensed and unlicensed stations, or strictly informational messages (such as, "A pirate station has been heard in Chicago on 104.7"). Postings that seek to support pirate stations (such as by drawing money, personnel, equipment, or listeners) will not be approved.

2.7 Moderation policies

Questions or complaints about moderation decisions or policies will not be permitted in the newsgroup itself. Please direct any such feedback to the moderators by sending us a message at rec-

radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com.

If you see an obviously inappropriate article in our newsgroup, please assume that it was a mistake or a direct forgery, and do not send follow-up postings. You may submit feedback to the administrative address regarding such articles, although it is likely that our monitoring software and procedures have already detected the problem and we are actively handling it.

---

3. NETIQUETTE

3.1 Introduction to Usenet netiquette

Participants who are new to Usenet should familiarize themselves with the "netiquette" of Usenet as well as the particular posting guidelines for this group. Several useful posts for "newbies" can be found on the newsgroup news.announce.newusers or on the World Wide Web at:

http://www.faqs.org/faqs/by-newsgroup/news/
news.announce.newusers.html

Particularly helpful articles are:
Welcome to Usenet!
Rules for posting to Usenet

Answers to Frequently Asked Questions about Usenet

3.2 Civility

Participants in rec.radio.broadcasting are encouraged to state their own views and share their experiences enthusiastically. However, in doing so, you should maintain a civil tone in all postings and treat other people respectfully.

You are welcome to criticize someone else's actions, but such criticism must not degrade into a personal attack or name-calling. To be safe, refrain from making assumptions about the motivations of other people. For example, "That's a lie" implies an intentional prevarication, and "So-and-so is a liar" is name-calling. Instead, say "That's not true, because...," or "I think that So-and-so is wrong because..."

Making fun of someone's name or refusing to refer to them by their proper name is also a violation of this guideline. In cases where someone uses a different on-air name, please use that name unless they have specifically said that it's all right to refer to them publicly by their real name.

Note that this guideline covers everyone you talk about in your postings, whether they are participants in this group or not.

3.3 Posting form

Any article that falls into any of the following categories will be automatically rejected:

A) Articles that contain original text of more than 75 characters per line (except for URLs; see sections 3.7 and 3.8)
B) Articles that are crossposted other than as described in section 4.1)
C) Articles that contain more than 400 lines
D) Postings that contain attachments (except short .sig files; see section 3.6)
E) Postings that include encoded binary files (except PGP and other short digital signatures)
F) Articles containing obscene language
G) Articles from individuals who have been suspended or banned from the newsgroup
H) Articles that consist mostly of direct quotation from copyrighted sources (also see section 3.7)

3.4 Excessive quoting

Posters must show a reasonable effort to trim the post they are replying to. Replies should include just enough of the original material to establish a context for your own comments.

Posts more than 20 lines long that have more than 50% quoted text will be carefully reviewed by a moderator to determine whether that degree of quoting is warranted. Posts with excessive quoted text may be rejected.

IMPORTANT: If you use a newsreader (such as Google Groups) that allows you to hide the posting to which you are replying, you must unhide the quoted text and trim it appropriately. Also be certain that your newsreader is not configured to automatically append the previous article to the bottom of your postings. All participants in rec.radio.broadcasting are responsible for using their news-readers properly to comply with the group's posting guidelines.

"Me too!" posts are discouraged. If you do post such a message, you must edit the quoted material significantly.

3.5 Pseudonyms

Contributors to rec.radio.broadcasting are encouraged to use their real (given or on-air) names. This not only creates a greater sense of community in the newsgroup, it also lends credibility to posters' opinions. However, as a pragmatic concession to the realities of the present-day Internet, and consistent with the practices of other moderated newsgroups, pseudonyms and unroutable email address are permitted with some restrictions.

We ask that the From: lines of submitted articles not misrepresent your identity, not be changed often, and not match a user or domain name other than your own (spoofing). Postings that have a pseudonym that violates any of our other rules (such as civility) will be rejected.

Please realize that if you use an unroutable email address, you will not be able to receive acknowledgment or rejection messages for your submitted articles. If one of your articles was rejected and you are unable to receive the notice that explains the rejection, you will need to send a note to the moderation team for clarification.

3.6 Signature files

Many people close each article they write with a few lines of common text. This may be a clever quote, contact information, or disclaimer required by their employer. Signature (.sig) files attached to rec.radio.broadcasting postings must be no longer than four lines plus a standard delimiter (such as two dashes).

The content of a poster's signature need not be relevant to broadcasting, but it must not violate any of the other posting guidelines. (For example, name-calling that would not be acceptable in the body of a message is also unacceptable in a signature.) Posters may include Uniform Resource Locators (URLs) and business addresses in signature files, provided they comply with all the other guidelines regarding signatures.

3.7 Use of copyrighted material

Unless you own the copyright yourself or have the written permission of the copyright owner (either of which must be so stated), do not post copyrighted material such as newspaper articles to rec.radio.broadcasting. Instead, post a synopsis of the material with a link to the full article. If you are posting a link to a blog or other site where information changes frequently, please use a "permalink" to the exact article you're citing.

Quoting of public domain information, such as radio station information from the FCC database, is fine.

3.8 Pointers to outside sources

Unsolicited announcements and pointers to web sites that are exclusively advertisements or other public relations campaigns are not permitted. However, a pointer to a website or other external source of information is permitted and encouraged in cases where it is relevant to an existing thread, with appropriate context being given in the post.

A URL with no information about what a user should expect to find there will be rejected. If you are posting a link to a blog or other site where information changes frequently, please use a

"permalink" to the exact article you're citing. Also, we prefer full URLs instead of (or in addition to) ones that have been modified by a link shortener so that readers of the posting will know which website they are actually going to. If you do use a link shortener, please also indicate the full name of the website to which you are linking.

A pointer to information that is off-charter for rec.radio.broadcasting will be rejected, as will a pointer which itself does not meet the rec.radio.broadcasting guidelines (such as a URL containing name-calling).

Moderators are not responsible for verifying the contents of any external information source. Moderators only review submissions for adherence to the RRB guidelines, such as appropriateness of topic and Usenet etiquette.

4. TECHNICAL AND ADMINISTRATIVE ISSUES

4.1 Crossposting

A limited amount of appropriate simultaneous crossposting will be permitted at the discretion of the moderation team. Appropriate crossposted newsgroups could include rec.radio.noncomm, ba.broadcast, ba.broadcast.moderated, or alt.radio.broadcasting. Currently, a limit of 3 newsgroups total is enforced by our moderation software.

Please note that, because of the way moderated Usenet groups work, any posting submitted to a moderated group will not be forwarded to any other groups until it is accepted by the initial group. For example, if you submit a posting to both RRB and BAB, and we reject it, it will never appear on BAB.

4.2 Valid "From" address

Participants in rec.radio.broadcasting may, if they wish, use an invalid or "munged" email address in their "From" header line. However, please be aware that if you do so, you will be unable to receive messages from the moderators, such as requests to revise submitted postings or explanations of why postings were rejected.

Also, we want rec.radio.broadcasting to promote interaction among participants, and in some cases, information is more appropriately relayed off-list. If you do not provide a valid email address, other posters will not be able to send you information, ask questions, etc. Therefore, if you are considering using an invalid "From" address in order to avoid spam email, we recommend that you instead (1) find an ISP with robust spam-filtering for incoming email, and/or (2) obtain an email address just for your Usenet postings (e.g. from Yahoo or Gmail).

4.3 Lost or rejected postings

We never reject anything in silence, and we make a point to answer all our mail. However, newsgroup postings can and do get lost every now and again.

If you send us a posting and you neither see it in RRB nor hear from us directly within two or three days, you can be pretty sure that either your mail never reached us, or that our answer never reached you. (See section 4.2 for why the latter might happen.) In that case, please submit your article again. (We will filter out duplicates.) You're also welcome to send a note to rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com if you have any concerns about your submissions not being received.

If you have any questions or comments about these guidelines, please send a message to rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com.

(Adapted from the rec.radio.amateur.moderated posting guidelines and from Bill Pfeiffer's original RRB guidelines and FAQ.)

4.1 Crossposting
4.2 Valid "From" address

4.3 Lost or rejected postings

This is a living document and will be updated as needed to meet the needs of this group.

---

1. INTRODUCTION

1.1 Invitation to participate
The moderators of rec.radio.broadcasting (RRB) invite the participation of broadcast professionals and non-professionals alike. Both the people who operate radio stations and the people who listen to them have valuable insights into the art, business, and/or science of broadcasting.

1.2 Charter

Rec.radio broadcasting is intended as a worldwide forum dedicated to the discussion of subjects pertaining to domestic radio broadcasting. By the term "domestic," we mean radio which is intended basically for reception within the country in which it originates. Other Usenet groups are available for discussing international broadcast services.

1.3 How to submit articles

You can use your newsreading software to submit an article to rec.radio.broadcasting as you would to any other newsgroup. The only difference is that your news server will automatically forward your article to the moderation team instead of posting it directly to the group. Alternatively, you can email submissions to rec-radio-broadcasting@panix.com. We generally turn around articles at least the same day, usually much faster.

---

2. ACCEPTABLE AND UNACCEPTABLE TOPICS

If you are ever unsure about whether a proposed topic is appropriate for RRB, please feel free to ask the moderation team at:

rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com

2.1 Newsgroup focus

RRB is designed to provide a public forum for professional and informed discussion and dissemination of information pertaining to the art, business, and science of radio broadcasting. By "professional and informed," we mean discussions by broadcast professionals as well as those with a serious interest in radio broadcasting. As mentioned in the Introduction, we welcome the participation of radio listeners as well as those inside the industry.

RRB is an international newsgroup, so the term "domestic" should not be taken to imply just the United States or North America. Readers in other nations are encouraged to post questions and comments about their own country's radio stations.

2.2 Examples of acceptable topics

Generally, if a subject would be of interest to broadcast professionals or listeners, it is acceptable. Here are just a few ideas for discussion topics:

* New stations and changes to existing stations (but see section 2.6 for limitations on discussions of unlicensed stations)
* Formats and programming
* Equipment and techniques involved in the transmission and reception of broadcast radio signals
* Other engineering and technical matters
* Domestic broadcast-band DXing
* Community broadcasting
* Legislation affecting radio stations
* Radio's current and future trends
* Job openings and help to those seeking work in the industry

If you post about a local radio station or personality, please realize that most RRB readers will know little or nothing about that station or person, so please include a little background to set the context for your remarks.

2.3 Examples of unacceptable topics

This is not a comprehensive list. Please contact the moderation team if you aren't sure whether your proposed topic is appropriate or not.

* Non-domestic stations and activities (BBC World, Voice of America, SWLing, etc.)
* Non-broadcast radio services (amateur, Internet, satellite, etc.)
* Television broadcasting (except on rare occasions when the subject of the posting would also be of broad interest to radio people).

2.4 Programming discussions

Because the intent of RRB is to foster discussion, postings of a primarily promotional nature should be kept to a minimum. Program hosts and other interested parties are welcome to submit brief notices about special guests, fill-in hosts, etc. However, playlists, weekly program schedules, and similar listings should instead be posted in a more appropriate venue, such as the station's or host's website.

Reviews of the performance of on-air personalities are fine, but please note that rec.radio.broadcasting is not the place to discuss the topics of radio talk shows. (Unless the topic itself is the art, science, or business of radio broadcasting.)

Postings about broadcasters' off-air activities should usually be confined to events that are that are related to their broadcast career, such as personal appearances on behalf of their station. Exceptions will be made for extraordinary events such as a broadcaster's death.

2.5 Commercial postings

Businesses and individuals today have a wealth of online selling venues--both general sites such as eBay and Craigslist, and region-specific Usenet groups such as ba.broadcast and uk.tech.broadcast. Therefore, RRB may not be the most effective place to post your for-sale ad. It's best when you want to offer an item that's likely to be of interest to broadcasters or radio fans over a broad geographical area. Please consider the alternatives before submitting your posting to RRB.

Examples of suitable for-sale postings might include, "My station just got a new mixer and is selling its old Acme Model 100; please contact me directly for details," or "I just found a box of KHJ aircheck tapes in my basement; drop me a note if you're interested in buying them."

For-sale message must solicit responses directly to the poster; do not direct readers to another site such as Craigslist or eBay.

Notices about especially important or interesting new products are fine. Please disclose whether or not you have a financial interest in the manufacturer or reseller you're mentioning.

Each poster to RRB is allowed one commercial posting per month.

Postings about job openings are welcomed. Be sure to include your real name, company name, and valid contact information (email address, phone number, or mailing address).

2.6 Pirate radio

Postings about unlicensed domestic radio operations should be limited to discussions of their history, notices of enforcement actions, discussions of technical conflicts between licensed and unlicensed stations, or strictly informational messages (such as, "A pirate station has been heard in Chicago on 104.7"). Postings that seek to support pirate stations (such as by drawing money, personnel, equipment, or listeners) will not be approved.

2.7 Moderation policies

Questions or complaints about moderation decisions or policies will not be permitted in the newsgroup itself. Please direct any such feedback to the moderators by sending us a message at rec-

radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com.

If you see an obviously inappropriate article in our newsgroup, please assume that it was a mistake or a direct forgery, and do not send follow-up postings. You may submit feedback to the administrative address regarding such articles, although it is likely that our monitoring software and procedures have already detected the problem and we are actively handling it.

---

3. NETIQUETTE

3.1 Introduction to Usenet netiquette

Participants who are new to Usenet should familiarize themselves with the "netiquette" of Usenet as well as the particular posting guidelines for this group. Several useful posts for "newbies" can be found on the newsgroup news.announce.newusers or on the World Wide Web at:

http://www.faqs.org/faqs/by-newsgroup/news/
news.announce.newusers.html

Particularly helpful articles are:
Welcome to Usenet!
Rules for posting to Usenet

3.2 Civility

Participants in rec.radio.broadcasting are encouraged to state their own views and share their experiences enthusiastically. However, in doing so, you should maintain a civil tone in all postings and treat other people respectfully.

You are welcome to criticize someone else's actions, but such criticism must not degrade into a personal attack or name-calling. To be safe, refrain from making assumptions about the motivations of other people. For example, "That's a lie" implies an intentional prevarication, and "So-and-so is a liar" is name-calling. Instead, say "That's not true, because...," or "I think that So-and-so is wrong because..."

Making fun of someone's name or refusing to refer to them by their proper name is also a violation of this guideline. In cases where someone uses a different on-air name, please use that name unless they have specifically said that it's all right to refer to them publicly by their real name.

Note that this guideline covers everyone you talk about in your postings, whether they are participants in this group or not.

3.3 Posting form

Any article that falls into any of the following categories will be automatically rejected:

A) Articles that contain original text of more than 75 characters per line (except for URLs; see sections 3.7 and 3.8)
B) Articles that are crossposted other than as described in section 4.1)
C) Articles that contain more than 400 lines
D) Postings that contain attachments (except short .sig files; see section 3.6)
E) Postings that include encoded binary files (except PGP and other short digital signatures)
F) Articles containing obscene language
G) Articles from individuals who have been suspended or banned from the newsgroup
H) Articles that consist mostly of direct quotation from copyrighted sources (also see section 3.7)

3.4 Excessive quoting

Posters must show a reasonable effort to trim the post they are replying to. Replies should include just enough of the original material to establish a context for your own comments.

Posts more than 20 lines long that have more than 50% quoted text will be carefully reviewed by a moderator to determine whether that degree of quoting is warranted. Posts with excessive quoted text may be rejected.

IMPORTANT: If you use a newsreader (such as Google Groups) that allows you to hide the posting to which you are replying, you must unhide the quoted text and trim it appropriately. Also be certain that your newsreader is not configured to automatically append the previous article to the bottom of your postings. All participants in rec.radio.broadcasting are responsible for using their news-readers properly to comply with the group's posting guidelines.

"Me too!" posts are discouraged. If you do post such a message, you must edit the quoted material significantly.

3.5 Pseudonyms

Contributors to rec.radio.broadcasting are encouraged to use their real (given or on-air) names. This not only creates a greater sense of community in the newsgroup, it also lends credibility to posters' opinions. However, as a pragmatic concession to the realities of the present-day Internet, and consistent with the practices of other moderated newsgroups, pseudonyms and unroutable email address are permitted with some restrictions.

We ask that the From: lines of submitted articles not misrepresent your identity, not be changed often, and not match a user or domain name other than your own (spoofing). Postings that have a pseudonym that violates any of our other rules (such as civility) will be rejected.

Please realize that if you use an unroutable email address, you will not be able to receive acknowledgment or rejection messages for your submitted articles. If one of your articles was rejected and you are unable to receive the notice that explains the rejection, you will need to send a note to the moderation team for clarification.

3.6 Signature files

Many people close each article they write with a few lines of common text. This may be a clever quote, contact information, or disclaimer required by their employer. Signature (.sig) files attached to rec.radio.broadcasting postings must be no longer than four lines plus a standard delimiter (such as two dashes).

The content of a poster's signature need not be relevant to broadcasting, but it must not violate any of the other posting guidelines. (For example, name-calling that would not be acceptable in the body of a message is also unacceptable in a signature.) Posters may include Uniform Resource Locators (URLs) and business addresses in signature files, provided they comply with all the other guidelines regarding signatures.

3.7 Use of copyrighted material

Unless you own the copyright yourself or have the written permission of the copyright owner (either of which must be so stated), do not post copyrighted material such as newspaper articles to rec.radio.broadcasting. Instead, post a synopsis of the material with a link to the full article. If you are posting a link to a blog or other site where information changes frequently, please use a "permalink" to the exact article you're citing.

Quoting of public domain information, such as radio station information from the FCC database, is fine.

3.8 Pointers to outside sources

Unsolicited announcements and pointers to web sites that are exclusively advertisements or other public relations campaigns are not permitted. However, a pointer to a website or other external source of information is permitted and encouraged in cases where it is relevant to an existing thread, with appropriate context being given in the post.

A URL with no information about what a user should expect to find there will be rejected. If you are posting a link to a blog or other site where information changes frequently, please use a

"permalink" to the exact article you're citing. Also, we prefer full URLs instead of (or in addition to) ones that have been modified by a link shortener so that readers of the posting will know which website they are actually going to. If you do use a link shortener, please also indicate the full name of the website to which you are linking.

A pointer to information that is off-charter for rec.radio.broadcasting will be rejected, as will a pointer which itself does not meet the rec.radio.broadcasting guidelines (such as a URL containing name-calling).

Moderators are not responsible for verifying the contents of any external information source. Moderators only review submissions for adherence to the RRB guidelines, such as appropriateness of topic and Usenet etiquette.

4. TECHNICAL AND ADMINISTRATIVE ISSUES

4.1 Crossposting

A limited amount of appropriate simultaneous crossposting will be permitted at the discretion of the moderation team. Appropriate crossposted newsgroups could include rec.radio.noncomm, ba.broadcast, ba.broadcast.moderated, or alt.radio.broadcasting. Currently, a limit of 3 newsgroups total is enforced by our moderation software.

Please note that, because of the way moderated Usenet groups work, any posting submitted to a moderated group will not be forwarded to any other groups until it is accepted by the initial group. For example, if you submit a posting to both RRB and BAB, and we reject it, it will never appear on BAB.

4.2 Valid "From" address

Participants in rec.radio.broadcasting may, if they wish, use an invalid or "munged" email address in their "From" header line. However, please be aware that if you do so, you will be unable to receive messages from the moderators, such as requests to revise submitted postings or explanations of why postings were rejected.

Also, we want rec.radio.broadcasting to promote interaction among participants, and in some cases, information is more appropriately relayed off-list. If you do not provide a valid email address, other posters will not be able to send you information, ask questions, etc. Therefore, if you are considering using an invalid "From" address in order to avoid spam email, we recommend that you instead (1) find an ISP with robust spam-filtering for incoming email, and/or (2) obtain an email address just for your Usenet postings (e.g. from Yahoo or Gmail).

4.3 Lost or rejected postings

We never reject anything in silence, and we make a point to answer all our mail. However, newsgroup postings can and do get lost every now and again.

If you send us a posting and you neither see it in RRB nor hear from us directly within two or three days, you can be pretty sure that either your mail never reached us, or that our answer never reached you. (See section 4.2 for why the latter might happen.) In that case, please submit your article again. (We will filter out duplicates.) You're also welcome to send a note to rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com if you have any concerns about your submissions not being received.

If you have any questions or comments about these guidelines, please send a message to rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com.

If there are any Old Time Radio listeners in this group I would be interested in your input. Using creativity, production, acting, writing and your totally unobjective personal taste as the criteria, rank your top ten old time radio programs. Mine are:

1. The Adventures of Harry Lime
2. Crime Classics
3. Mr. President
4. Suspense
5. Frontier Gentleman
6. The Whistler
7. Gunsmoke
8. I Was a Communist For the FBI
9. You Are There
10. Unit 99

Points will be awarded inversely e.g. 10 points for a #1 ranking, 9 points for #2, etc. Totals will be calculated weekly for one month or however long interest in the topic remains.

Leader in the clubhouse:
The Adventures of Harry Lime: 10 points.

Incidentally a fantastic website devoted to Old Time Radio is http://www.otrcat.com/index.php/ I have no stake in the site, just feel they deserve a plug for their contribution to keeping the OTR hobby alive and well. One could spend many evenings reading the well written synopses and histories of hundreds of OTR programs produced during that wonderful era.

Myself and I suspect the vast majority of the readers of this newsgroup have insufficient motivation or time to draw up a definitive top ten list accurately rated according to all the criteria which you have specified.

Lists of one's favorite top tens are entirely pointless anyways, and the thing which is of interest and value to others, which you appear to be intent on squashing, is meaningful discussion of why shows should be on a top ten list.

> So do you have a list of favorites or not?

I do but not in any definitive order which you are obviously not interested in, nor why those shows would be on my list or anybody else's list.

104.5 KMCQ Seattle, which had generated a cult following for its broad 60s/70s Oldies format has shifted to 70s/80s Classic Hits and rebranded as Q104.5. The move places the station in more direct competition with Clear Channels 95.7 KJR-FM, which has straddled the line between Classic Hits and Classic Rock since the beginning of this [...]

I didn't like Richard Diamond quite as much. But there is a huge universe a shame.

Hmm... I don't see any posts at all in there. I gather from the limited headers that you posted there that it's junk coming from Google Groups.
You may want to talk to your usenet admin about dumping all posts from Google Groups... an increasing number of people are doing that and it pretty much eliminates all the spam. Google's usenet service seems to be run unattended.

Well that show does not quite have the gimmick of the Dollar show with the expenses tagline, so as you no doubt concur, is more just a run of the mill detective show probably to compete with the other higher profile detective characters.

A few of the shows (just like some of the junk produced today) would be best forgotten ;)

I have recently discovered that you can download for free quite a number of the OTR shows at the Internet Archive site

<http://www.archive.ORG>

This recent discussion also brought back to mind a radio drama series which I only heard one or two episodes of from 1984 or so that was broadcast on public radio stations. After a web search I found the title "Moon Over Morocco" and the company that produced it, ZBZ. Visiting their web site I discovered that it is possible to buy the series on CD, but they are charging the exorbitant price of USD 50 for the single CD.

Other CDs on their site of other radio shows which they produced are in the USD 20 price range, which although high by todays prices for CDs is rather more reasonable for such specialist material.

But USD 50 for a single CD???

How does ZBS get it to fit on one CD? It's nearly ten hours long.
I think the version we had at WREK came on twenty LPs.

I seriously doubt they managed to get the whole thing onto a single CD.
How much is Fourth Tower of Inverness? That one was also a whole stack of LPs and I had to dub the intro cuts on every single one of them to cart.

Oops <red face>

I only looked at the overview page which just had (CD) under the image and the price of USD 50.

Going to the page with all the details, it is 8 audio CDs, so in fact it works out to USD 6.125 per CD which is of course very reasonable.

If I got the impression that it was one CD, I would suggest that a few other people may as well, if they just skim the page.

Yes I know, I should have checked the actual details, but when it is late and one is just doing a cursory investigation ...

> I seriously doubt they managed to get the whole thing onto a single CD.

Well they could do if it was a data CD with MP3 files. In fact they do also offer those (320 kbps) for USD 45 which you would admit is effectively more expensive per bit.

> How much is Fourth Tower of Inverness?

6 audio CDs for USD 45.00

If you want to have a look at what it is on offer --

Now that I realize that the prices are for multi-CD sets, the prices are not too bad.

Welcome to any new RRB readers from Jupiter! The moderation team will be discussing revisions to the group's guidelines (such as replacing "worldwide" with "solar system-wide") so that you don't feel that you aren't wanted here...

Patty

p.s. I hope the emissions in question were intended for domestic (in this case, jovian) reception only, as we do not allow discussions of international (or, by extension, interplanetary) broadcasts here.
Thanks for understanding!

4.2 Valid "From" address

4.3 Lost or rejected postings

This is a living document and will be updated as needed to meet the needs of this group.

---

1. INTRODUCTION

1.1 Invitation to participate
The moderators of rec.radio.broadcasting (RRB) invite the participation of broadcast professionals and non-professionals alike. Both the people who operate radio stations and the people who listen to them have valuable insights into the art, business, and/or science of broadcasting.

1.2 Charter

Rec.radio broadcasting is intended as a worldwide forum dedicated to the discussion of subjects pertaining to domestic radio broadcasting. By the term "domestic," we mean radio which is intended basically for reception within the country in which it originates. Other Usenet groups are available for discussing international broadcast services.

1.3 How to submit articles

You can use your newsreading software to submit an article to rec.radio.broadcasting as you would to any other newsgroup. The only difference is that your news server will automatically forward your article to the moderation team instead of posting it directly to the group. Alternatively, you can email submissions to rec-radio-broadcasting@panix.com. We generally turn around articles at least the same day, usually much faster.

---

2. ACCEPTABLE AND UNACCEPTABLE TOPICS

If you are ever unsure about whether a proposed topic is appropriate for RRB, please feel free to ask the moderation team at:

rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com

2.1 Newsgroup focus

RRB is designed to provide a public forum for professional and informed discussion and dissemination of information pertaining to the art, business, and science of radio broadcasting. By "professional and informed," we mean discussions by broadcast professionals as well as those with a serious interest in radio broadcasting. As mentioned in the Introduction, we welcome the participation of radio listeners as well as those inside the industry.

RRB is an international newsgroup, so the term "domestic" should not be taken to imply just the United States or North America. Readers in other nations are encouraged to post questions and comments about their own country's radio stations.

2.2 Examples of acceptable topics

Generally, if a subject would be of interest to broadcast professionals or listeners, it is acceptable. Here are just a few ideas for discussion topics:

* New stations and changes to existing stations (but see section 2.6 for limitations on discussions of unlicensed stations)
* Formats and programming
* Equipment and techniques involved in the transmission and reception of broadcast radio signals
* Other engineering and technical matters
* Domestic broadcast-band DXing
* Community broadcasting
* Legislation affecting radio stations
* Radio's current and future trends
* Job openings and help to those seeking work in the industry

If you post about a local radio station or personality, please realize that most RRB readers will know little or nothing about that station or person, so please include a little background to set the context for your remarks.

2.3 Examples of unacceptable topics

This is not a comprehensive list. Please contact the moderation team if you aren't sure whether your proposed topic is appropriate or not.

* Non-domestic stations and activities (BBC World, Voice of America, SWLing, etc.)
* Non-broadcast radio services (amateur, Internet, satellite, etc.)
* Television broadcasting (except on rare occasions when the subject of the posting would also be of broad interest to radio people).

2.4 Programming discussions

Because the intent of RRB is to foster discussion, postings of a primarily promotional nature should be kept to a minimum. Program hosts and other interested parties are welcome to submit brief notices about special guests, fill-in hosts, etc. However, playlists, weekly program schedules, and similar listings should instead be posted in a more appropriate venue, such as the station's or host's website.

Reviews of the performance of on-air personalities are fine, but please note that rec.radio.broadcasting is not the place to discuss the topics of radio talk shows. (Unless the topic itself is the art, science, or business of radio broadcasting.)

Postings about broadcasters' off-air activities should usually be confined to events that are that are related to their broadcast career, such as personal appearances on behalf of their station. Exceptions will be made for extraordinary events such as a broadcaster's death.

2.5 Commercial postings

Businesses and individuals today have a wealth of online selling venues--both general sites such as eBay and Craigslist, and region-specific Usenet groups such as ba.broadcast and uk.tech.broadcast. Therefore, RRB may not be the most effective place to post your for-sale ad. It's best when you want to offer an item that's likely to be of interest to broadcasters or radio fans over a broad geographical area. Please consider the alternatives before submitting your posting to RRB.

Examples of suitable for-sale postings might include, "My station just got a new mixer and is selling its old Acme Model 100; please contact me directly for details," or "I just found a box of KHJ aircheck tapes in my basement; drop me a note if you're interested in buying them."

For-sale message must solicit responses directly to the poster; do not direct readers to another site such as Craigslist or eBay.

Notices about especially important or interesting new products are fine. Please disclose whether or not you have a financial interest in the manufacturer or reseller you're mentioning.

Each poster to RRB is allowed one commercial posting per month.

Postings about job openings are welcomed. Be sure to include your real name, company name, and valid contact information (email address, phone number, or mailing address).

2.6 Pirate radio

Postings about unlicensed domestic radio operations should be limited to discussions of their history, notices of enforcement actions, discussions of technical conflicts between licensed and unlicensed stations, or strictly informational messages (such as, "A pirate station has been heard in Chicago on 104.7"). Postings that seek to support pirate stations (such as by drawing money, personnel, equipment, or listeners) will not be approved.

2.7 Moderation policies

Questions or complaints about moderation decisions or policies will not be permitted in the newsgroup itself. Please direct any such feedback to the moderators by sending us a message at rec-

radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com.

If you see an obviously inappropriate article in our newsgroup, please assume that it was a mistake or a direct forgery, and do not send follow-up postings. You may submit feedback to the administrative address regarding such articles, although it is likely that our monitoring software and procedures have already detected the problem and we are actively handling it.

---

3. NETIQUETTE

3.1 Introduction to Usenet netiquette

Participants who are new to Usenet should familiarize themselves with the "netiquette" of Usenet as well as the particular posting guidelines for this group. Several useful posts for "newbies" can be found on the newsgroup news.announce.newusers or on the World Wide Web at:

http://www.faqs.org/faqs/by-newsgroup/news/
news.announce.newusers.html

Particularly helpful articles are:
Welcome to Usenet!
Rules for posting to Usenet
Hints on writing style for Usenet
A Primer on How to Work With the Usenet Community
Emily Postnews Answers Your Questions on Netiquette
Answers to Frequently Asked Questions about Usenet

3.2 Civility

Participants in rec.radio.broadcasting are encouraged to state their own views and share their experiences enthusiastically. However, in doing so, you should maintain a civil tone in all postings and treat other people respectfully.

You are welcome to criticize someone else's actions, but such criticism must not degrade into a personal attack or name-calling. To be safe, refrain from making assumptions about the motivations of other people. For example, "That's a lie" implies an intentional prevarication, and "So-and-so is a liar" is name-calling. Instead, say "That's not true, because...," or "I think that So-and-so is wrong because..."

Making fun of someone's name or refusing to refer to them by their proper name is also a violation of this guideline. In cases where someone uses a different on-air name, please use that name unless they have specifically said that it's all right to refer to them publicly by their real name.

Note that this guideline covers everyone you talk about in your postings, whether they are participants in this group or not.

3.3 Posting form

Any article that falls into any of the following categories will be automatically rejected:

A) Articles that contain original text of more than 75 characters per line (except for URLs; see sections 3.7 and 3.8)
B) Articles that are crossposted other than as described in section 4.1)
C) Articles that contain more than 400 lines
D) Postings that contain attachments (except short .sig files; see section 3.6)
E) Postings that include encoded binary files (except PGP and other short digital signatures)
F) Articles containing obscene language
G) Articles from individuals who have been suspended or banned from the newsgroup
H) Articles that consist mostly of direct quotation from copyrighted sources (also see section 3.7)

3.4 Excessive quoting

Posters must show a reasonable effort to trim the post they are replying to. Replies should include just enough of the original material to establish a context for your own comments.

Posts more than 20 lines long that have more than 50% quoted text will be carefully reviewed by a moderator to determine whether that degree of quoting is warranted. Posts with excessive quoted text may be rejected.

IMPORTANT: If you use a newsreader (such as Google Groups) that allows you to hide the posting to which you are replying, you must unhide the quoted text and trim it appropriately. Also be certain that your newsreader is not configured to automatically append the previous article to the bottom of your postings. All participants in rec.radio.broadcasting are responsible for using their news-readers properly to comply with the group's posting guidelines.

"Me too!" posts are discouraged. If you do post such a message, you must edit the quoted material significantly.

3.5 Pseudonyms

Contributors to rec.radio.broadcasting are encouraged to use their real (given or on-air) names. This not only creates a greater sense of community in the newsgroup, it also lends credibility to posters' opinions. However, as a pragmatic concession to the realities of the present-day Internet, and consistent with the practices of other moderated newsgroups, pseudonyms and unroutable email address are permitted with some restrictions.

We ask that the From: lines of submitted articles not misrepresent your identity, not be changed often, and not match a user or domain name other than your own (spoofing). Postings that have a pseudonym that violates any of our other rules (such as civility) will be rejected.

Please realize that if you use an unroutable email address, you will not be able to receive acknowledgment or rejection messages for your submitted articles. If one of your articles was rejected and you are unable to receive the notice that explains the rejection, you will need to send a note to the moderation team for clarification.

3.6 Signature files

Many people close each article they write with a few lines of common text. This may be a clever quote, contact information, or disclaimer required by their employer. Signature (.sig) files attached to rec.radio.broadcasting postings must be no longer than four lines plus a standard delimiter (such as two dashes).

The content of a poster's signature need not be relevant to broadcasting, but it must not violate any of the other posting guidelines. (For example, name-calling that would not be acceptable in the body of a message is also unacceptable in a signature.) Posters may include Uniform Resource Locators (URLs) and business addresses in signature files, provided they comply with all the other guidelines regarding signatures.

3.7 Use of copyrighted material

Unless you own the copyright yourself or have the written permission of the copyright owner (either of which must be so stated), do not post copyrighted material such as newspaper articles to rec.radio.broadcasting. Instead, post a synopsis of the material with a link to the full article. If you are posting a link to a blog or other site where information changes frequently, please use a "permalink" to the exact article you're citing.

Quoting of public domain information, such as radio station information from the FCC database, is fine.

3.8 Pointers to outside sources

Unsolicited announcements and pointers to web sites that are exclusively advertisements or other public relations campaigns are not permitted. However, a pointer to a website or other external source of information is permitted and encouraged in cases where it is relevant to an existing thread, with appropriate context being given in the post.

A URL with no information about what a user should expect to find there will be rejected. If you are posting a link to a blog or other site where information changes frequently, please use a

"permalink" to the exact article you're citing. Also, we prefer full URLs instead of (or in addition to) ones that have been modified by a link shortener so that readers of the posting will know which website they are actually going to. If you do use a link shortener, please also indicate the full name of the website to which you are linking.

A pointer to information that is off-charter for rec.radio.broadcasting will be rejected, as will a pointer which itself does not meet the rec.radio.broadcasting guidelines (such as a URL containing name-calling).

Moderators are not responsible for verifying the contents of any external information source. Moderators only review submissions for adherence to the RRB guidelines, such as appropriateness of topic and Usenet etiquette.

4. TECHNICAL AND ADMINISTRATIVE ISSUES

4.1 Crossposting

A limited amount of appropriate simultaneous crossposting will be permitted at the discretion of the moderation team. Appropriate crossposted newsgroups could include rec.radio.noncomm, ba.broadcast, ba.broadcast.moderated, or alt.radio.broadcasting. Currently, a limit of 3 newsgroups total is enforced by our moderation software.

Please note that, because of the way moderated Usenet groups work, any posting submitted to a moderated group will not be forwarded to any other groups until it is accepted by the initial group. For example, if you submit a posting to both RRB and BAB, and we reject it, it will never appear on BAB.

4.2 Valid "From" address

Participants in rec.radio.broadcasting may, if they wish, use an invalid or "munged" email address in their "From" header line. However, please be aware that if you do so, you will be unable to receive messages from the moderators, such as requests to revise submitted postings or explanations of why postings were rejected.

Also, we want rec.radio.broadcasting to promote interaction among participants, and in some cases, information is more appropriately relayed off-list. If you do not provide a valid email address, other posters will not be able to send you information, ask questions, etc. Therefore, if you are considering using an invalid "From" address in order to avoid spam email, we recommend that you instead (1) find an ISP with robust spam-filtering for incoming email, and/or (2) obtain an email address just for your Usenet postings (e.g. from Yahoo or Gmail).

4.3 Lost or rejected postings

We never reject anything in silence, and we make a point to answer all our mail. However, newsgroup postings can and do get lost every now and again.

If you send us a posting and you neither see it in RRB nor hear from us directly within two or three days, you can be pretty sure that either your mail never reached us, or that our answer never reached you. (See section 4.2 for why the latter might happen.) In that case, please submit your article again. (We will filter out duplicates.) You're also welcome to send a note to rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com if you have any concerns about your submissions not being received.

If you have any questions or comments about these guidelines, please send a message to rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com.

(Adapted from the rec.radio.amateur.moderated posting guidelines and from Bill Pfeiffer's original RRB guidelines and FAQ.)

263. Insignia IBOC/HD FM Table Radio for $49, Mini-Review

Following tips from posters on other broadcast-radio-related newsgroups that Best Buy house brand Insignia had several models of HD radio receivers at low prices ($99), I went to the Best Buy web site. Don't bother searching for "HD Radio" as that only seems to return automobile head units. Instead, search for "Insignia HD". Four models were returned, one with a CD player and iPod dock for $99, a clock radio model for $99 that also supports Radio Reader services, a Walkman-style armband radio with rechargeable battery for $49, and a small FM-only table radio for $49.

The small table radio (Model "NS-HDRAD") was the one that caught my attention, having apparently been introduced this summer of 2012 according to other on-line reviews. Several local Best Buy stores had it in stock for same-day pickup according to the web site, so I headed to the nearest one. Don't bother looking for it on the shelf. The saleperson couldn't immediately find it either, but eventually tracked down the one that they had in stock (not sure if it was in the back, or just hidden/miscategorized on the sales floor, as I wasn't following closely).

Previous HD radios were expensive and power-hungry. In addition to a relatively low price, this one appears to run cool, and off of a low-current DC adapter or 4 AA batteries. No long-term experience with battery life yet.

The radio has an "HD scan" feature, and scanned to each available HD subchannel (HD1 and HD2). Even here in Omaha, Nebraska, there were enough HD subchannels to fill up at least half of the available 20 presets. They included:

KVNO 90.7 (University of Nebraska at Omaha, Public, Classical): HD1 digital copy of main channel, HD2 "Maverick Radio" which runs alternate programming, including campus sports when basketball and hockey are playing at the same time

KEZO 92.3 (Album Rock) : HD1 digital copy of main channel, HD2 ESPN Sports Center (may be simulcast of ESPN Radio from AM 690)

KGOR 99.1 (Oldies): HD1 digital copy of main channel, HD2 "Older" Oldies (appears to be a syndicated format with top-of-the-hour local ID's mixed in)

KXKT 103.7 (Country): HD1 digital copy of main channel, HD2 "Younger" Country

Based on the above sample, the programming choices for HD2 channels in Omaha appear to one of: off-loading of similar programming that cannot all fit on one channel, simulcasting of an AM outlet on FM, or slight tweaks to main formats to reach narrower audiences.

Reception within the A service contours, about 10 miles from the transmitters, seems good. The tuner will attempt to tune the HD1 signal first, and take a few seconds to lock up. Drop-outs on signal occurred only on the weaker stations (like KVNO) for brief periods. Adjusting the whip antenna seemed to make them mostly go away. The radio seems to avoid the analog <-> digital fallback "whiplash" with the associated time delays between the two signals. Stations that are analog only, or where the HD subchannels are not strong enough to be receivable, will be directly tuned to the analog channel.

Since I already own several receivers, including a couple of Superradios (II and III), XM satellite (SkyFi), and a Logitech "SqueezeBox" for Internet audio streaming, I find that the advantage of this Insignia HD model would be its small, portable size and providing additional programming that does not require a paid subscription, Internet connection, or even AC wall power, such as for in-the-office or on-the-go. Reception and audio quality seem reasonable in a non-challenging reception environment close to transmitters and in a smaller market with a more lightly loaded FM band.

Pros: Relatively low price (for HD), small size, battery power option, HD scan feature, large number of presets (20), built-in whip antenna and external antenna jack, AUX input jack, headphone jack, bright display readable even in direct sunlight, reasonably sane fallback tuning protocol (digital, then analog) that seems to avoid whiplash and time delays, reasonable reception with "small table radio" fidelity and audio clarity

Cons: Plastic case feels cheap, tuning is only by pre-sets or up/down buttons (no tuning knob), unit is stereo but speakers are only about 6-8 inches apart, no AM, no apparent way to tune the analog channel when HD is present, not well marketed or merchandised by Best Buy, stocked in limited and hard-to-find quantities in-store, still somewhat expensive relative to a comparable analog radio

I would also love to find Mike McCormick/Jim Hankins. A truly spectacular radio guy who absolutely loved rock and roll. As I recall, his favorite song was "Johnny Be Good." He was way, way, way, way ahead of his time.

Patty and Denny (I think his beautiful little baby daughter's name) were adorable. Patty - 5'4", Mike 6'6", but a totally wonderful couple.

I would love to hear from them.

Excerpts:

"I took the time to look at the Facebook pages of all fourteen commercial stations licensed to the market, as well as the leading non-commercial (in this case, religious, not educational or community)

While spreading the word of a child abduction via a radio station's

310. What Happens When 3 Truths Are True? Radiolab

The current Radiolab podcast (and possibly the broadcast) is titled "The Fact of the Matter" and contains several stories on the meaning of truth. The second segment is a mind-blowing segment about the "yellow rain" that the Hmong tribe of Vietnam say killed entire villages. The U.S. blamed the Soviet Union. The truth is very strange and calls into question: What happens when three mutually exclusive things are true at the same time, especially if you have hinged your entire life experience on a truth that may be false? http://www.radiolab.org I'm not sure of the air schedule, but Radiolab airs on KALW 91.7 and KQED Radio 88.5.

4.1 Crossposting
4.2 Valid "From" address

4.3 Lost or rejected postings

This is a living document and will be updated as needed to meet the needs of this group.

---

1. INTRODUCTION

1.1 Invitation to participate
The moderators of rec.radio.broadcasting (RRB) invite the participation of broadcast professionals and non-professionals alike. Both the people who operate radio stations and the people who listen to them have valuable insights into the art, business, and/or science of broadcasting.

1.2 Charter

Rec.radio broadcasting is intended as a worldwide forum dedicated to the discussion of subjects pertaining to domestic radio broadcasting. By the term "domestic," we mean radio which is intended basically for reception within the country in which it originates. Other Usenet groups are available for discussing international broadcast services.

1.3 How to submit articles

You can use your newsreading software to submit an article to rec.radio.broadcasting as you would to any other newsgroup. The only difference is that your news server will automatically forward your article to the moderation team instead of posting it directly to the group. Alternatively, you can email submissions to rec-radio-broadcasting@panix.com. We generally turn around articles at least the same day, usually much faster.

---

2. ACCEPTABLE AND UNACCEPTABLE TOPICS

If you are ever unsure about whether a proposed topic is appropriate for RRB, please feel free to ask the moderation team at:

rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com

2.1 Newsgroup focus

RRB is designed to provide a public forum for professional and informed discussion and dissemination of information pertaining to the art, business, and science of radio broadcasting. By "professional and informed," we mean discussions by broadcast professionals as well as those with a serious interest in radio broadcasting. As mentioned in the Introduction, we welcome the participation of radio listeners as well as those inside the industry.

RRB is an international newsgroup, so the term "domestic" should not be taken to imply just the United States or North America. Readers in other nations are encouraged to post questions and comments about their own country's radio stations.

2.2 Examples of acceptable topics

Generally, if a subject would be of interest to broadcast professionals or listeners, it is acceptable. Here are just a few ideas for discussion topics:

* New stations and changes to existing stations (but see section 2.6 for limitations on discussions of unlicensed stations)
* Formats and programming
* Equipment and techniques involved in the transmission and reception of broadcast radio signals
* Other engineering and technical matters
* Domestic broadcast-band DXing
* Community broadcasting
* Legislation affecting radio stations
* Radio's current and future trends
* Job openings and help to those seeking work in the industry

If you post about a local radio station or personality, please realize that most RRB readers will know little or nothing about that station or person, so please include a little background to set the context for your remarks.

2.3 Examples of unacceptable topics

This is not a comprehensive list. Please contact the moderation team if you aren't sure whether your proposed topic is appropriate or not.

* Non-domestic stations and activities (BBC World, Voice of America, SWLing, etc.)
* Non-broadcast radio services (amateur, Internet, satellite, etc.)
* Television broadcasting (except on rare occasions when the subject of the posting would also be of broad interest to radio people).

2.4 Programming discussions

Because the intent of RRB is to foster discussion, postings of a primarily promotional nature should be kept to a minimum. Program hosts and other interested parties are welcome to submit brief notices about special guests, fill-in hosts, etc. However, playlists, weekly program schedules, and similar listings should instead be posted in a more appropriate venue, such as the station's or host's website.

Reviews of the performance of on-air personalities are fine, but please note that rec.radio.broadcasting is not the place to discuss the topics of radio talk shows. (Unless the topic itself is the art, science, or business of radio broadcasting.)

Postings about broadcasters' off-air activities should usually be confined to events that are that are related to their broadcast career, such as personal appearances on behalf of their station. Exceptions will be made for extraordinary events such as a broadcaster's death.

2.5 Commercial postings

Businesses and individuals today have a wealth of online selling venues--both general sites such as eBay and Craigslist, and region-specific Usenet groups such as ba.broadcast and uk.tech.broadcast. Therefore, RRB may not be the most effective place to post your for-sale ad. It's best when you want to offer an item that's likely to be of interest to broadcasters or radio fans over a broad geographical area. Please consider the alternatives before submitting your posting to RRB.

Examples of suitable for-sale postings might include, "My station just got a new mixer and is selling its old Acme Model 100; please contact me directly for details," or "I just found a box of KHJ aircheck tapes in my basement; drop me a note if you're interested in buying them."

For-sale message must solicit responses directly to the poster; do not direct readers to another site such as Craigslist or eBay.

Notices about especially important or interesting new products are fine. Please disclose whether or not you have a financial interest in the manufacturer or reseller you're mentioning.

Each poster to RRB is allowed one commercial posting per month.

Postings about job openings are welcomed. Be sure to include your real name, company name, and valid contact information (email address, phone number, or mailing address).

2.6 Pirate radio

Postings about unlicensed domestic radio operations should be limited to discussions of their history, notices of enforcement actions, discussions of technical conflicts between licensed and unlicensed stations, or strictly informational messages (such as, "A pirate station has been heard in Chicago on 104.7"). Postings that seek to support pirate stations (such as by drawing money, personnel, equipment, or listeners) will not be approved.

2.7 Moderation policies

Questions or complaints about moderation decisions or policies will not be permitted in the newsgroup itself. Please direct any such feedback to the moderators by sending us a message at rec-

radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com.

If you see an obviously inappropriate article in our newsgroup, please assume that it was a mistake or a direct forgery, and do not send follow-up postings. You may submit feedback to the administrative address regarding such articles, although it is likely that our monitoring software and procedures have already detected the problem and we are actively handling it.

---

3. NETIQUETTE

3.1 Introduction to Usenet netiquette

Participants who are new to Usenet should familiarize themselves with the "netiquette" of Usenet as well as the particular posting guidelines for this group. Several useful posts for "newbies" can be found on the newsgroup news.announce.newusers or on the World Wide Web at:

http://www.faqs.org/faqs/by-newsgroup/news/news.announce.newusers.html

Particularly helpful articles are:
Welcome to Usenet!

3.2 Civility

Participants in rec.radio.broadcasting are encouraged to state their own views and share their experiences enthusiastically. However, in doing so, you should maintain a civil tone in all postings and treat other people respectfully.

You are welcome to criticize someone else's actions, but such criticism must not degrade into a personal attack or name-calling. To be safe, refrain from making assumptions about the motivations of other people. For example, "That's a lie" implies an intentional prevarication, and "So-and-so is a liar" is name-calling. Instead, say "That's not true, because...," or "I think that So-and-so is wrong because..."

Making fun of someone's name or refusing to refer to them by their proper name is also a violation of this guideline. In cases where someone uses a different on-air name, please use that name unless they have specifically said that it's all right to refer to them publicly by their real name.

Note that this guideline covers everyone you talk about in your postings, whether they are participants in this group or not.

3.3 Posting form

Any article that falls into any of the following categories will be automatically rejected:

A) Articles that contain original text of more than 75 characters per line (except for URLs; see sections 3.7 and 3.8)
B) Articles that are crossposted other than as described in section 4.1)
C) Articles that contain more than 400 lines
D) Postings that contain attachments (except short .sig files; see section 3.6)
E) Postings that include encoded binary files (except PGP and other short digital signatures)
F) Articles containing obscene language
G) Articles from individuals who have been suspended or banned from the newsgroup
H) Articles that consist mostly of direct quotation from copyrighted sources (also see section 3.7)

3.4 Excessive quoting

Posters must show a reasonable effort to trim the post they are replying to. Replies should include just enough of the original material to establish a context for your own comments.

Posts more than 20 lines long that have more than 50% quoted text will be carefully reviewed by a moderator to determine whether that degree of quoting is warranted. Posts with excessive quoted text may be rejected.

IMPORTANT: If you use a newsreader (such as Google Groups) that allows you to hide the posting to which you are replying, you must unhide the quoted text and trim it appropriately. Also be certain that your newsreader is not configured to automatically append the previous article to the bottom of your postings. All participants in rec.radio.broadcasting are responsible for using their news-readers properly to comply with the group's posting guidelines.

"Me too!" posts are discouraged. If you do post such a message, you must edit the quoted material significantly.

3.5 Pseudonyms

Contributors to rec.radio.broadcasting are encouraged to use their real (given or on-air) names. This not only creates a greater sense of community in the newsgroup, it also lends credibility to posters' opinions. However, as a pragmatic concession to the realities of the present-day Internet, and consistent with the practices of other moderated newsgroups, pseudonyms and unroutable email address are permitted with some restrictions.

We ask that the From: lines of submitted articles not misrepresent your identity, not be changed often, and not match a user or domain name other than your own (spoofing). Postings that have a pseudonym that violates any of our other rules (such as civility) will be rejected.

Please realize that if you use an unroutable email address, you will not be able to receive acknowledgment or rejection messages for your submitted articles. If one of your articles was rejected and you are unable to receive the notice that explains the rejection, you will need to send a note to the moderation team for clarification.

3.6 Signature files

Many people close each article they write with a few lines of common text. This may be a clever quote, contact information, or disclaimer required by their employer. Signature (.sig) files attached to rec.radio.broadcasting postings must be no longer than four lines plus a standard delimiter (such as two dashes).

The content of a poster's signature need not be relevant to broadcasting, but it must not violate any of the other posting guidelines. (For example, name-calling that would not be acceptable in the body of a message is also unacceptable in a signature.) Posters may include Uniform Resource Locators (URLs) and business addresses in signature files, provided they comply with all the other guidelines regarding signatures.

3.7 Use of copyrighted material

Unless you own the copyright yourself or have the written permission of the copyright owner (either of which must be so stated), do not post copyrighted material such as newspaper articles to rec.radio.broadcasting. Instead, post a synopsis of the material with a link to the full article. If you are posting a link to a blog or other site where information changes frequently, please use a "permalink" to the exact article you're citing.

Quoting of public domain information, such as radio station information from the FCC database, is fine.

3.8 Pointers to outside sources

Unsolicited announcements and pointers to web sites that are exclusively advertisements or other public relations campaigns are not permitted. However, a pointer to a website or other external source of information is permitted and encouraged in cases where it is relevant to an existing thread, with appropriate context being given in the post.

A URL with no information about what a user should expect to find there will be rejected. If you are posting a link to a blog or other site where information changes frequently, please use a

"permalink" to the exact article you're citing. Also, we prefer full URLs instead of (or in addition to) ones that have been modified by a link shortener so that readers of the posting will know which website they are actually going to. If you do use a link shortener, please also indicate the full name of the website to which you are linking.

A pointer to information that is off-charter for rec.radio.broadcasting will be rejected, as will a pointer which itself does not meet the rec.radio.broadcasting guidelines (such as a URL containing name-calling).

Moderators are not responsible for verifying the contents of any external information source. Moderators only review submissions for adherence to the RRB guidelines, such as appropriateness of topic and Usenet etiquette.

4. TECHNICAL AND ADMINISTRATIVE ISSUES

4.1 Crossposting

A limited amount of appropriate simultaneous crossposting will be permitted at the discretion of the moderation team. Appropriate crossposted newsgroups could include rec.radio.noncomm, ba.broadcast, ba.broadcast.moderated, or alt.radio.broadcasting. Currently, a limit of 3 newsgroups total is enforced by our moderation software.

Please note that, because of the way moderated Usenet groups work, any posting submitted to a moderated group will not be forwarded to any other groups until it is accepted by the initial group. For example, if you submit a posting to both RRB and BAB, and we reject it, it will never appear on BAB.

4.2 Valid "From" address

Participants in rec.radio.broadcasting may, if they wish, use an invalid or "munged" email address in their "From" header line. However, please be aware that if you do so, you will be unable to receive messages from the moderators, such as requests to revise submitted postings or explanations of why postings were rejected.

Also, we want rec.radio.broadcasting to promote interaction among participants, and in some cases, information is more appropriately relayed off-list. If you do not provide a valid email address, other posters will not be able to send you information, ask questions, etc. Therefore, if you are considering using an invalid "From" address in order to avoid spam email, we recommend that you instead (1) find an ISP with robust spam-filtering for incoming email, and/or (2) obtain an email address just for your Usenet postings (e.g. from Yahoo or Gmail).

4.3 Lost or rejected postings

We never reject anything in silence, and we make a point to answer all our mail. However, newsgroup postings can and do get lost every now and again.

If you send us a posting and you neither see it in RRB nor hear from us directly within two or three days, you can be pretty sure that either your mail never reached us, or that our answer never reached you. (See section 4.2 for why the latter might happen.) In that case, please submit your article again. (We will filter out duplicates.) You're also welcome to send a note to rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com if you have any concerns about your submissions not being received.

If you have any questions or comments about these guidelines, please send a message to rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com.

(Adapted from the rec.radio.amateur.moderated posting guidelines and from Bill Pfeiffer's original RRB guidelines and FAQ.)

Would you believe that 87 year old Art Laboe, the founder of the "Oldies But Goodies" oldies record label, and longtime Southern California DJ and promoter is STILL doing a regular DJ show and promoting shows? I remember listening to him on XERB growing up here in the Bay Area.

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Art_Laboe

It was funny; my mom bought me some of Art Laboe's "Oldes But Goodies" albums in the 1960s and the songs had familiar titles, but the songs were sung by different people! It was years later that I learned that many of the songs I grew up with were white cover versions of earlier ones done by black and Italian doo wop singers.

4.3 Lost or rejected postings

This is a living document and will be updated as needed to meet the needs of this group.

---

1. INTRODUCTION

1.1 Invitation to participate
The moderators of rec.radio.broadcasting (RRB) invite the participation of broadcast professionals and non-professionals alike. Both the people who operate radio stations and the people who listen to them have valuable insights into the art, business, and/or science of broadcasting.

1.2 Charter

Rec.radio broadcasting is intended as a worldwide forum dedicated to the discussion of subjects pertaining to domestic radio broadcasting. By the term "domestic," we mean radio which is intended basically for reception within the country in which it originates. Other Usenet groups are available for discussing international broadcast services.

1.3 How to submit articles

You can use your newsreading software to submit an article to rec.radio.broadcasting as you would to any other newsgroup. The only difference is that your news server will automatically forward your article to the moderation team instead of posting it directly to the group. Alternatively, you can email submissions to rec-radio-broadcasting@panix.com. We generally turn around articles at least the same day, usually much faster.

---

2. ACCEPTABLE AND UNACCEPTABLE TOPICS

If you are ever unsure about whether a proposed topic is appropriate for RRB, please feel free to ask the moderation team at:

rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com

2.1 Newsgroup focus

RRB is designed to provide a public forum for professional and informed discussion and dissemination of information pertaining to the art, business, and science of radio broadcasting. By "professional and informed," we mean discussions by broadcast professionals as well as those with a serious interest in radio broadcasting. As mentioned in the Introduction, we welcome the participation of radio listeners as well as those inside the industry.

RRB is an international newsgroup, so the term "domestic" should not be taken to imply just the United States or North America. Readers in other nations are encouraged to post questions and comments about their own country's radio stations.

2.2 Examples of acceptable topics

Generally, if a subject would be of interest to broadcast professionals or listeners, it is acceptable. Here are just a few ideas for discussion topics:

* New stations and changes to existing stations (but see section 2.6 for limitations on discussions of unlicensed stations)
* Formats and programming
* Equipment and techniques involved in the transmission and reception of broadcast radio signals
* Other engineering and technical matters
* Domestic broadcast-band DXing
* Community broadcasting
* Legislation affecting radio stations
* Radio's current and future trends
* Job openings and help to those seeking work in the industry

If you post about a local radio station or personality, please realize that most RRB readers will know little or nothing about that station or person, so please include a little background to set the context for your remarks.

2.3 Examples of unacceptable topics

This is not a comprehensive list. Please contact the moderation team if you aren't sure whether your proposed topic is appropriate or not.

* Non-domestic stations and activities (BBC World, Voice of America, SWLing, etc.)
* Non-broadcast radio services (amateur, Internet, satellite, etc.)
* Television broadcasting (except on rare occasions when the subject of the posting would also be of broad interest to radio people).

2.4 Programming discussions

Because the intent of RRB is to foster discussion, postings of a primarily promotional nature should be kept to a minimum. Program hosts and other interested parties are welcome to submit brief notices about special guests, fill-in hosts, etc. However, playlists, weekly program schedules, and similar listings should instead be posted in a more appropriate venue, such as the station's or host's website.

Reviews of the performance of on-air personalities are fine, but please note that rec.radio.broadcasting is not the place to discuss the topics of radio talk shows. (Unless the topic itself is the art, science, or business of radio broadcasting.)

Postings about broadcasters' off-air activities should usually be confined to events that are that are related to their broadcast career, such as personal appearances on behalf of their station. Exceptions will be made for extraordinary events such as a broadcaster's death.

2.5 Commercial postings

Businesses and individuals today have a wealth of online selling venues--both general sites such as eBay and Craigslist, and region-specific Usenet groups such as ba.broadcast and uk.tech.broadcast. Therefore, RRB may not be the most effective place to post your for-sale ad. It's best when you want to offer an item that's likely to be of interest to broadcasters or radio fans over a broad geographical area. Please consider the alternatives before submitting your posting to RRB.

Examples of suitable for-sale postings might include, "My station just got a new mixer and is selling its old Acme Model 100; please contact me directly for details," or "I just found a box of KHJ aircheck tapes in my basement; drop me a note if you're interested in buying them."

For-sale message must solicit responses directly to the poster; do not direct readers to another site such as Craigslist or eBay.

Notices about especially important or interesting new products are fine. Please disclose whether or not you have a financial interest in the manufacturer or reseller you're mentioning.

Each poster to RRB is allowed one commercial posting per month.

Postings about job openings are welcomed. Be sure to include your real name, company name, and valid contact information (email address, phone number, or mailing address).

2.6 Pirate radio

Postings about unlicensed domestic radio operations should be limited to discussions of their history, notices of enforcement actions, discussions of technical conflicts between licensed and unlicensed stations, or strictly informational messages (such as, "A pirate station has been heard in Chicago on 104.7"). Postings that seek to support pirate stations (such as by drawing money, personnel, equipment, or listeners) will not be approved.

2.7 Moderation policies

Questions or complaints about moderation decisions or policies will not be permitted in the newsgroup itself. Please direct any such feedback to the moderators by sending us a message at rec-

radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com.

If you see an obviously inappropriate article in our newsgroup, please assume that it was a mistake or a direct forgery, and do not send follow-up postings. You may submit feedback to the administrative address regarding such articles, although it is likely that our monitoring software and procedures have already detected the problem and we are actively handling it.

3. NETIQUETTE

3.1 Introduction to Usenet netiquette

Participants who are new to Usenet should familiarize themselves with the "netiquette" of Usenet as well as the particular posting guidelines for this group. Several useful posts for "newbies" can be found on the newsgroup news.announce.newusers or on the World Wide Web at:

http://www.faqs.org/faqs/by-newsgroup/news/
news.announce.newusers.html

Particularly helpful articles are:
Welcome to Usenet!

3.2 Civility

Participants in rec.radio.broadcasting are encouraged to state their own views and share their experiences enthusiastically. However, in doing so, you should maintain a civil tone in all postings and treat other people respectfully.

You are welcome to criticize someone else's actions, but such criticism must not degrade into a personal attack or name-calling. To be safe, refrain from making assumptions about the motivations of other people. For example, "That's a lie" implies an intentional prevarication, and "So-and-so is a liar" is name-calling. Instead, say "That's not true, because...," or "I think that So-and-so is wrong because..."

Making fun of someone's name or refusing to refer to them by their proper name is also a violation of this guideline. In cases where someone uses a different on-air name, please use that name unless they have specifically said that it's all right to refer to them publicly by their real name.

Note that this guideline covers everyone you talk about in your postings, whether they are participants in this group or not.

3.3 Posting form

Any article that falls into any of the following categories will be automatically rejected:

A) Articles that contain original text of more than 75 characters per line (except for URLs; see sections 3.7 and 3.8)
B) Articles that are crossposted other than as described in section 4.1)
C) Articles that contain more than 400 lines
D) Postings that contain attachments (except short .sig files; see section 3.6)
E) Postings that include encoded binary files (except PGP and other short digital signatures)
F) Articles containing obscene language
G) Articles from individuals who have been suspended or banned from the newsgroup
H) Articles that consist mostly of direct quotation from copyrighted sources (also see section 3.7)

3.4 Excessive quoting

Posters must show a reasonable effort to trim the post they are replying to. Replies should include just enough of the original material to establish a context for your own comments.

Posts more than 20 lines long that have more than 50% quoted text will be carefully reviewed by a moderator to determine whether that degree of quoting is warranted. Posts with excessive quoted text may be rejected.

IMPORTANT: If you use a newsreader (such as Google Groups) that allows you to hide the posting to which you are replying, you must unhide the quoted text and trim it appropriately. Also be certain that your newsreader is not configured to automatically append the previous article to the bottom of your postings. All participants in rec.radio.broadcasting are responsible for using their news-readers properly to comply with the group's posting guidelines.

"Me too!" posts are discouraged. If you do post such a message, you must edit the quoted material significantly.

3.5 Pseudonyms

Contributors to rec.radio.broadcasting are encouraged to use their real (given or on-air) names. This not only creates a greater sense of community in the newsgroup, it also lends credibility to posters' opinions. However, as a pragmatic concession to the realities of the present-day Internet, and consistent with the practices of other moderated newsgroups, pseudonyms and unroutable email address are permitted with some restrictions.

We ask that the From: lines of submitted articles not misrepresent your identity, not be changed often, and not match a user or domain name other than your own (spoofing). Postings that have a pseudonym that violates any of our other rules (such as civility) will be rejected.

Please realize that if you use an unroutable email address, you will not be able to receive acknowledgment or rejection messages for your submitted articles. If one of your articles was rejected and you are unable to receive the notice that explains the rejection, you will need to send a note to the moderation team for clarification.

3.6 Signature files

Many people close each article they write with a few lines of common text. This may be a clever quote, contact information, or disclaimer required by their employer. Signature (.sig) files attached to rec.radio.broadcasting postings must be no longer than four lines plus a standard delimiter (such as two dashes).

The content of a poster's signature need not be relevant to broadcasting, but it must not violate any of the other posting guidelines. (For example, name-calling that would not be acceptable in the body of a message is also unacceptable in a signature.) Posters may include Uniform Resource Locators (URLs) and business addresses in signature files, provided they comply with all the other guidelines regarding signatures.

3.7 Use of copyrighted material

Unless you own the copyright yourself or have the written permission of the copyright owner (either of which must be so stated), do not post copyrighted material such as newspaper articles to rec.radio.broadcasting. Instead, post a synopsis of the material with a link to the full article. If you are posting a link to a blog or other site where information changes frequently, please use a "permalink" to the exact article you're citing.

Quoting of public domain information, such as radio station information from the FCC database, is fine.

3.8 Pointers to outside sources

Unsolicited announcements and pointers to web sites that are exclusively advertisements or other public relations campaigns are not permitted. However, a pointer to a website or other external source of information is permitted and encouraged in cases where it is relevant to an existing thread, with appropriate context being given in the post.

A URL with no information about what a user should expect to find there will be rejected. If you are posting a link to a blog or other site where information changes frequently, please use a

"permalink" to the exact article you're citing. Also, we prefer full URLs instead of (or in addition to) ones that have been modified by a link shortener so that readers of the posting will know which website they are actually going to. If you do use a link shortener, please also indicate the full name of the website to which you are linking.

A pointer to information that is off-charter for rec.radio.broadcasting will be rejected, as will a pointer which itself does not meet the rec.radio.broadcasting guidelines (such as a URL containing name-calling).

Moderators are not responsible for verifying the contents of any external information source. Moderators only review submissions for adherence to the RRB guidelines, such as appropriateness of topic and Usenet etiquette.

4. TECHNICAL AND ADMINISTRATIVE ISSUES

4.1 Crossposting

A limited amount of appropriate simultaneous crossposting will be permitted at the discretion of the moderation team. Appropriate crossposted newsgroups could include rec.radio.noncomm, ba.broadcast, ba.broadcast.moderated, or alt.radio.broadcasting. Currently, a limit of 3 newsgroups total is enforced by our moderation software.

Please note that, because of the way moderated Usenet groups work, any posting submitted to a moderated group will not be forwarded to any other groups until it is accepted by the initial group. For example, if you submit a posting to both RRB and BAB, and we reject it, it will never appear on BAB.

4.2 Valid "From" address

Participants in rec.radio.broadcasting may, if they wish, use an invalid or "munged" email address in their "From" header line. However, please be aware that if you do so, you will be unable to receive messages from the moderators, such as requests to revise submitted postings or explanations of why postings were rejected.

Also, we want rec.radio.broadcasting to promote interaction among participants, and in some cases, information is more appropriately relayed off-list. If you do not provide a valid email address, other posters will not be able to send you information, ask questions, etc. Therefore, if you are considering using an invalid "From" address in order to avoid spam email, we recommend that you instead (1) find an ISP with robust spam-filtering for incoming email, and/or (2) obtain an email address just for your Usenet postings (e.g. from Yahoo or Gmail).

4.3 Lost or rejected postings

We never reject anything in silence, and we make a point to answer all our mail. However, newsgroup postings can and do get lost every now and again.

If you send us a posting and you neither see it in RRB nor hear from us directly within two or three days, you can be pretty sure that either your mail never reached us, or that our answer never reached you. (See section 4.2 for why the latter might happen.) In that case, please submit your article again. (We will filter out duplicates.) You're also welcome to send a note to rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com if you have any concerns about your submissions not being received.

If you have any questions or comments about these guidelines, please send a message to rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com.

(Adapted from the rec.radio.amateur.moderated posting guidelines and from Bill Pfeiffer's original RRB guidelines and FAQ.)

rec.radio.broadcasting Posting Guidelines

Last updated 5/16/2011

Welcome to rec.radio.broadcasting! This is a moderated Usenet newsgroup open to anyone who has an interest in broadcast radio anywhere in the world.

The posting guidelines for rec.radio.broadcasting are divided into the following sections:

1. Introduction
1.1 Invitation to participate
1.2 Charter
1.3 How to submit articles

2. Acceptable and Unacceptable Topics
2.1 Newsgroup focus
2.2 Examples of acceptable topics
2.3 Examples of unacceptable topics
2.4 Programming discussions
2.5 Commercial postings
2.6 Pirate radio
2.7 Moderation policies

3. Netiquette
3.1 Introduction to Usenet netiquette
3.2 Civility
3.3 Posting form
3.4 Excessive quoting
3.5 Pseudonyms
3.6 Signature files
3.7 Use of copyrighted material
3.8 Pointers to outside sources

4. Technical and Administrative Issues
4.1 Crossposting
4.2 Valid "From" address

4.3 Lost or rejected postings

This is a living document and will be updated as needed to meet the needs of this group.

---

1. INTRODUCTION

1.1 Invitation to participate
The moderators of rec.radio.broadcasting (RRB) invite the participation of broadcast professionals and non-professionals alike. Both the people who operate radio stations and the people who listen to them have valuable insights into the art, business, and/or science of broadcasting.

1.2 Charter

Rec.radio broadcasting is intended as a worldwide forum dedicated to the discussion of subjects pertaining to domestic radio broadcasting. By the term "domestic," we mean radio which is intended basically for reception within the country in which it originates. Other Usenet groups are available for discussing international broadcast services.

1.3 How to submit articles

You can use your newsreading software to submit an article to rec.radio.broadcasting as you would to any other newsgroup. The only difference is that your news server will automatically forward your article to the moderation team instead of posting it directly to the group. Alternatively, you can email submissions to rec-radio-broadcasting@panix.com. We generally turn around articles at least the same day, usually much faster.

---

2. ACCEPTABLE AND UNACCEPTABLE TOPICS

If you are ever unsure about whether a proposed topic is appropriate for RRB, please feel free to ask the moderation team at:

rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com

2.1 Newsgroup focus

RRB is designed to provide a public forum for professional and informed discussion and dissemination of information pertaining to the art, business, and science of radio broadcasting. By "professional and informed," we mean discussions by broadcast professionals as well as those with a serious interest in radio broadcasting. As mentioned in the Introduction, we welcome the participation of radio listeners as well as those inside the industry.

RRB is an international newsgroup, so the term "domestic" should not be taken to imply just the United States or North America. Readers in other nations are encouraged to post questions and comments about their own country's radio stations.

2.2 Examples of acceptable topics

Generally, if a subject would be of interest to broadcast professionals or listeners, it is acceptable. Here are just a few ideas for discussion topics:

* New stations and changes to existing stations (but see section 2.6 for limitations on discussions of unlicensed stations)
* Formats and programming
* Equipment and techniques involved in the transmission and reception of broadcast radio signals
* Other engineering and technical matters
* Domestic broadcast-band DXing
* Community broadcasting
* Legislation affecting radio stations
* Radio's current and future trends
* Job openings and help to those seeking work in the industry

If you post about a local radio station or personality, please realize that most RRB readers will know little or nothing about that station or person, so please include a little background to set the context for your remarks.

2.3 Examples of unacceptable topics

This is not a comprehensive list. Please contact the moderation team if you aren't sure whether your proposed topic is appropriate or not.

* Non-domestic stations and activities (BBC World, Voice of America, SWLing, etc.)
* Non-broadcast radio services (amateur, Internet, satellite, etc.)
* Television broadcasting (except on rare occasions when the subject of the posting would also be of broad interest to radio people).

2.4 Programming discussions

Because the intent of RRB is to foster discussion, postings of a primarily promotional nature should be kept to a minimum. Program hosts and other interested parties are welcome to submit brief notices about special guests, fill-in hosts, etc. However, playlists, weekly program schedules, and similar listings should instead be posted in a more appropriate venue, such as the station's or host's website.

Reviews of the performance of on-air personalities are fine, but please note that rec.radio.broadcasting is not the place to discuss the topics of radio talk shows. (Unless the topic itself is the art, science, or business of radio broadcasting.)

Postings about broadcasters' off-air activities should usually be confined to events that are that are related to their broadcast career, such as personal appearances on behalf of their station. Exceptions will be made for extraordinary events such as a broadcaster's death.

2.5 Commercial postings

Businesses and individuals today have a wealth of online selling venues--both general sites such as eBay and Craigslist, and region-specific Usenet groups such as ba.broadcast and uk.tech.broadcast. Therefore, RRB may not be the most effective place to post your for-sale ad. It's best when you want to offer an item that's likely to be of interest to broadcasters or radio fans over a broad geographical area. Please consider the alternatives before submitting your posting to RRB.

Examples of suitable for-sale postings might include, "My station just got a new mixer and is selling its old Acme Model 100; please contact me directly for details," or "I just found a box of KHJ aircheck tapes in my basement; drop me a note if you're interested in buying them."

For-sale message must solicit responses directly to the poster; do not direct readers to another site such as Craigslist or eBay.

Notices about especially important or interesting new products are fine. Please disclose whether or not you have a financial interest in the manufacturer or reseller you're mentioning.

Each poster to RRB is allowed one commercial posting per month.

Postings about job openings are welcomed. Be sure to include your real name, company name, and valid contact information (email address, phone number, or mailing address).

2.6 Pirate radio

Postings about unlicensed domestic radio operations should be limited to discussions of their history, notices of enforcement actions, discussions of technical conflicts between licensed and unlicensed stations, or strictly informational messages (such as, "A pirate station has been heard in Chicago on 104.7"). Postings that seek to support pirate stations (such as by drawing money, personnel, equipment, or listeners) will not be approved.

2.7 Moderation policies

Questions or complaints about moderation decisions or policies will not be permitted in the newsgroup itself. Please direct any such feedback to the moderators by sending us a message at rec-

radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com.

If you see an obviously inappropriate article in our newsgroup, please assume that it was a mistake or a direct forgery, and do not send follow-up postings. You may submit feedback to the administrative address regarding such articles, although it is likely that our monitoring software and procedures have already detected the problem and we are actively handling it.

3. NETIQUETTE

3.1 Introduction to Usenet netiquette

Participants who are new to Usenet should familiarize themselves with the "netiquette" of Usenet as well as the particular posting guidelines for this group. Several useful posts for "newbies" can be found on the newsgroup news.announce.newusers or on the World Wide Web at:

http://www.faqs.org/faqs/by-newsgroup/news/
news.announce.newusers.html

Particularly helpful articles are:

3.2 Civility

Participants in rec.radio.broadcasting are encouraged to state their own views and share their experiences enthusiastically. However, in doing so, you should maintain a civil tone in all postings and treat other people respectfully.

You are welcome to criticize someone else's actions, but such criticism must not degrade into a personal attack or name-calling. To be safe, refrain from making assumptions about the motivations of other people. For example, "That's a lie" implies an intentional prevarication, and "So-and-so is a liar" is name-calling. Instead, say "That's not true, because...," or "I think that So-and-so is wrong because..."

Making fun of someone's name or refusing to refer to them by their proper name is also a violation of this guideline. In cases where someone uses a different on-air name, please use that name unless they have specifically said that it's all right to refer to them publicly by their real name.

Note that this guideline covers everyone you talk about in your postings, whether they are participants in this group or not.

3.3 Posting form

Any article that falls into any of the following categories will be automatically rejected:

A) Articles that contain original text of more than 75 characters per line (except for URLs; see sections 3.7 and 3.8)
B) Articles that are crossposted other than as described in section 4.1)
C) Articles that contain more than 400 lines
D) Postings that contain attachments (except short .sig files; see section 3.6)
E) Postings that include encoded binary files (except PGP and other short digital signatures)
F) Articles containing obscene language
G) Articles from individuals who have been suspended or banned from the newsgroup
H) Articles that consist mostly of direct quotation from copyrighted sources (also see section 3.7)

3.4 Excessive quoting

Posters must show a reasonable effort to trim the post they are replying to. Replies should include just enough of the original material to establish a context for your own comments.

Posts more than 20 lines long that have more than 50% quoted text will be carefully reviewed by a moderator to determine whether that degree of quoting is warranted. Posts with excessive quoted text may be rejected.

IMPORTANT: If you use a newsreader (such as Google Groups) that allows you to hide the posting to which you are replying, you must unhide the quoted text and trim it appropriately. Also be certain that your newsreader is not configured to automatically append the previous article to the bottom of your postings. All participants in rec.radio.broadcasting are responsible for using their news-readers properly to comply with the group's posting guidelines.

"Me too!" posts are discouraged. If you do post such a message, you must edit the quoted material significantly.

3.5 Pseudonyms

Contributors to rec.radio.broadcasting are encouraged to use their real (given or on-air) names. This not only creates a greater sense of community in the newsgroup, it also lends credibility to posters' opinions. However, as a pragmatic concession to the realities of the present-day Internet, and consistent with the practices of other moderated newsgroups, pseudonyms and unroutable email address are permitted with some restrictions.

We ask that the From: lines of submitted articles not misrepresent your identity, not be changed often, and not match a user or domain name other than your own (spoofing). Postings that have a pseudonym that violates any of our other rules (such as civility) will be rejected.

Please realize that if you use an unroutable email address, you will not be able to receive acknowledgment or rejection messages for your submitted articles. If one of your articles was rejected and you are unable to receive the notice that explains the rejection, you will need to send a note to the moderation team for clarification.

3.6 Signature files

Many people close each article they write with a few lines of common text. This may be a clever quote, contact information, or disclaimer required by their employer. Signature (.sig) files attached to rec.radio.broadcasting postings must be no longer than four lines plus a standard delimiter (such as two dashes).

The content of a poster's signature need not be relevant to broadcasting, but it must not violate any of the other posting guidelines. (For example, name-calling that would not be acceptable in the body of a message is also unacceptable in a signature.) Posters may include Uniform Resource Locators (URLs) and business addresses in signature files, provided they comply with all the other guidelines regarding signatures.

3.7 Use of copyrighted material

Unless you own the copyright yourself or have the written permission of the copyright owner (either of which must be so stated), do not post copyrighted material such as newspaper articles to rec.radio.broadcasting. Instead, post a synopsis of the material with a link to the full article. If you are posting a link to a blog or other site where information changes frequently, please use a "permalink" to the exact article you're citing.

Quoting of public domain information, such as radio station information from the FCC database, is fine.

3.8 Pointers to outside sources

Unsolicited announcements and pointers to web sites that are exclusively advertisements or other public relations campaigns are not permitted. However, a pointer to a website or other external source of information is permitted and encouraged in cases where it is relevant to an existing thread, with appropriate context being given in the post.

A URL with no information about what a user should expect to find there will be rejected. If you are posting a link to a blog or other site where information changes frequently, please use a

"permalink" to the exact article you're citing. Also, we prefer full URLs instead of (or in addition to) ones that have been modified by a link shortener so that readers of the posting will know which website they are actually going to. If you do use a link shortener, please also indicate the full name of the website to which you are linking.

A pointer to information that is off-charter for rec.radio.broadcasting will be rejected, as will a pointer which itself does not meet the rec.radio.broadcasting guidelines (such as a URL containing name-calling).

Moderators are not responsible for verifying the contents of any external information source. Moderators only review submissions for adherence to the RRB guidelines, such as appropriateness of topic and Usenet etiquette.

4. TECHNICAL AND ADMINISTRATIVE ISSUES

4.1 Crossposting

A limited amount of appropriate simultaneous crossposting will be permitted at the discretion of the moderation team. Appropriate crossposted newsgroups could include rec.radio.noncomm, ba.broadcast, ba.broadcast.moderated, or alt.radio.broadcasting. Currently, a limit of 3 newsgroups total is enforced by our moderation software.

Please note that, because of the way moderated Usenet groups work, any posting submitted to a moderated group will not be forwarded to any other groups until it is accepted by the initial group. For example, if you submit a posting to both RRB and BAB, and we reject it, it will never appear on BAB.

4.2 Valid "From" address

Participants in rec.radio.broadcasting may, if they wish, use an invalid or "munged" email address in their "From" header line. However, please be aware that if you do so, you will be unable to receive messages from the moderators, such as requests to revise submitted postings or explanations of why postings were rejected.

Also, we want rec.radio.broadcasting to promote interaction among participants, and in some cases, information is more appropriately relayed off-list. If you do not provide a valid email address, other posters will not be able to send you information, ask questions, etc. Therefore, if you are considering using an invalid "From" address in order to avoid spam email, we recommend that you instead (1) find an ISP with robust spam-filtering for incoming email, and/or (2) obtain an email address just for your Usenet postings (e.g. from Yahoo or Gmail).

4.3 Lost or rejected postings

We never reject anything in silence, and we make a point to answer all our mail. However, newsgroup postings can and do get lost every now and again.

If you send us a posting and you neither see it in RRB nor hear from us directly within two or three days, you can be pretty sure that either your mail never reached us, or that our answer never reached you. (See section 4.2 for why the latter might happen.) In that case, please submit your article again. (We will filter out duplicates.) You're also welcome to send a note to rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com if you have any concerns about your submissions not being received.

If you have any questions or comments about these guidelines, please send a message to rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com.

(Adapted from the rec.radio.amateur.moderated posting guidelines and from Bill Pfeiffer's original RRB guidelines and FAQ.)

Hey guys,
I don't have quite the same problem, but we broadcast a radio show out of n ashville, tn and we connect daily to a remote studio in washington DC via I SDN connection. Both sides are using telos zephyrs. Periodically we will ha ve digital interference on the receiving end in DC (sometimes it bleeds thr ough to our side.) The interference sounds like a "chirp" or harsh high pit ched scraping noise that lasts about a split second.

Our carrier in Nashville is ATT, and on the DC side it's verizon. We also c onnect to many other studios on a daily basis in Texas, Georgia, and NY, an d NEVER have had this issue. All of our gear and our lines have been tested and cleared on this end (Nashville). We have also had a Verizon ISDN tech go to our DC location and run a BRI test from those SPIDS to the local C.O.
and his tests were clean.

We have seem to do everything possible, but the problem persists.
Any ideas? (sorry for the length and wordiness)

And it happens on a regular interval? If you time them, you get exactly the same distance between them? If so, someone has a clock that isn't synched up right (and it's apt to be one of the telcos).

The clock can be free-running and all his tests will be clean unless he keeps running them long enough to see an error.

>We have seem to do everything possible, but the problem persists.
>Any ideas? (sorry for the length and wordiness)

A letter to the PUC never hurt anyone. Your goal is basically to get the telcos to find the one ISDN expert they have on staff out to look at it.

This is a living document and will be updated as needed to meet the needs of this group.

1. INTRODUCTION

1.1 Invitation to participate
The moderators of rec.radio.broadcasting (RRB) invite the participation of broadcast professionals and non-professionals alike. Both the people who operate radio stations and the people who listen to them have valuable insights into the art, business, and/or science of broadcasting.

1.2 Charter

Rec.radio broadcasting is intended as a worldwide forum dedicated to the discussion of subjects pertaining to domestic radio broadcasting. By the term "domestic," we mean radio which is intended basically for reception within the country in which it originates. Other Usenet groups are available for discussing international broadcast services.

1.3 How to submit articles

You can use your newsreading software to submit an article to rec.radio.broadcasting as you would to any other newsgroup. The only difference is that your news server will automatically forward your article to the moderation team instead of posting it directly to the group. Alternatively, you can email submissions to rec-radio-broadcasting@panix.com. We generally turn around articles at least the same day, usually much faster.

---

2. ACCEPTABLE AND UNACCEPTABLE TOPICS

If you are ever unsure about whether a proposed topic is appropriate for RRB, please feel free to ask the moderation team at:

rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com

2.1 Newsgroup focus

RRB is designed to provide a public forum for professional and informed discussion and dissemination of information pertaining to the art, business, and science of radio broadcasting. By "professional and informed," we mean discussions by broadcast professionals as well as those with a serious interest in radio broadcasting. As mentioned in the Introduction, we welcome the participation of radio listeners as well as those inside the industry.

RRB is an international newsgroup, so the term "domestic" should not be taken to imply just the United States or North America. Readers in other nations are encouraged to post questions and comments about their own country's radio stations.

2.2 Examples of acceptable topics

Generally, if a subject would be of interest to broadcast professionals or listeners, it is acceptable. Here are just a few ideas for discussion topics:

* New stations and changes to existing stations (but see section 2.6 for limitations on discussions of unlicensed stations)
* Formats and programming
* Equipment and techniques involved in the transmission and reception of broadcast radio signals
* Other engineering and technical matters
* Domestic broadcast-band DXing
* Community broadcasting
* Legislation affecting radio stations
* Radio's current and future trends
* Job openings and help to those seeking work in the industry

If you post about a local radio station or personality, please realize that most RRB readers will know little or nothing about that station or person, so please include a little background to set the context for your remarks.

2.3 Examples of unacceptable topics

This is not a comprehensive list. Please contact the moderation team if you aren't sure whether your proposed topic is appropriate or not.

* Non-domestic stations and activities (BBC World, Voice of America, SWLing, etc.)
* Non-broadcast radio services (amateur, Internet, satellite, etc.)
* Television broadcasting (except on rare occasions when the subject of the posting would also be of broad interest to radio people).

2.4 Programming discussions

Because the intent of RRB is to foster discussion, postings of a primarily promotional nature should be kept to a minimum. Program hosts and other interested parties are welcome to submit brief notices about special guests, fill-in hosts, etc. However, playlists, weekly program schedules, and similar listings should instead be posted in a more appropriate venue, such as the station's or host's website.

Reviews of the performance of on-air personalities are fine, but please note that rec.radio.broadcasting is not the place to discuss the topics of radio talk shows. (Unless the topic itself is the art, science, or business of radio broadcasting.)

Postings about broadcasters' off-air activities should usually be confined to events that are that are related to their broadcast career, such as personal appearances on behalf of their station. Exceptions will be made for extraordinary events such as a broadcaster's death.

2.5 Commercial postings

Businesses and individuals today have a wealth of online selling venues--both general sites such as eBay and Craigslist, and region-specific Usenet groups such as ba.broadcast and uk.tech.broadcast. Therefore, RRB may not be the most effective place to post your for-sale ad. It's best when you want to offer an item that's likely to be of interest to broadcasters or radio fans over a broad geographical area. Please consider the alternatives before submitting your posting to RRB.

Examples of suitable for-sale postings might include, "My station just got a new mixer and is selling its old Acme Model 100; please contact me directly for details," or "I just found a box of KHJ aircheck tapes in my basement; drop me a note if you're interested in buying them."

For-sale message must solicit responses directly to the poster; do not direct readers to another site such as Craigslist or eBay.

Notices about especially important or interesting new products are fine. Please disclose whether or not you have a financial interest in the manufacturer or reseller you're mentioning.

Each poster to RRB is allowed one commercial posting per month.

Postings about job openings are welcomed. Be sure to include your real name, company name, and valid contact information (email address, phone number, or mailing address).

2.6 Pirate radio

Postings about unlicensed domestic radio operations should be limited to discussions of their history, notices of enforcement actions, discussions of technical conflicts between licensed and unlicensed stations, or strictly informational messages (such as, "A pirate station has been heard in Chicago on 104.7"). Postings that seek to support pirate stations (such as by drawing money, personnel, equipment, or listeners) will not be approved.

2.7 Moderation policies

Questions or complaints about moderation decisions or policies will not be permitted in the newsgroup itself. Please direct any such feedback to the moderators by sending us a message at rec-

radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com.

If you see an obviously inappropriate article in our newsgroup, please assume that it was a mistake or a direct forgery, and do not send follow-up postings. You may submit feedback to the administrative address regarding such articles, although it is likely that our monitoring software and procedures have already detected the problem and we are actively handling it.

3. NETIQUETTE

3.1 Introduction to Usenet netiquette

Participants who are new to Usenet should familiarize themselves with the "netiquette" of Usenet as well as the particular posting guidelines for this group. Several useful posts for "newbies" can be found on the newsgroup news.announce.newusers or on the World Wide Web at:

http://www.faqs.org/faqs/by-newsgroup/news/news.announce.newusers.html

Particularly helpful articles are:
Welcome to Usenet!
Rules for posting to Usenet

A Primer on How to Work With the Usenet Community
Emily Postnews Answers Your Questions on Netiquette
Answers to Frequently Asked Questions about Usenet

3.2 Civility

Participants in rec.radio.broadcasting are encouraged to state their own views and share their experiences enthusiastically. However, in doing so, you should maintain a civil tone in all postings and treat other people respectfully.

You are welcome to criticize someone else's actions, but such criticism must not degrade into a personal attack or name-calling. To be safe, refrain from making assumptions about the motivations of other people. For example, "That's a lie" implies an intentional prevarication, and "So-and-so is a liar" is name-calling. Instead, say "That's not true, because...," or "I think that So-and-so is wrong because..."

Making fun of someone's name or refusing to refer to them by their proper name is also a violation of this guideline. In cases where someone uses a different on-air name, please use that name unless they have specifically said that it's all right to refer to them publicly by their real name.

Note that this guideline covers everyone you talk about in your postings, whether they are participants in this group or not.

3.3 Posting form

Any article that falls into any of the following categories will be automatically rejected:

A) Articles that contain original text of more than 75 characters per line (except for URLs; see sections 3.7 and 3.8)
B) Articles that are crossposted other than as described in section 4.1)
C) Articles that contain more than 400 lines
D) Postings that contain attachments (except short .sig files; see section 3.6)
E) Postings that include encoded binary files (except PGP and other short digital signatures)
F) Articles containing obscene language
G) Articles from individuals who have been suspended or banned from the newsgroup
H) Articles that consist mostly of direct quotation from copyrighted sources (also see section 3.7)

3.4 Excessive quoting

Posters must show a reasonable effort to trim the post they are replying to. Replies should include just enough of the original material to establish a context for your own comments.

Posts more than 20 lines long that have more than 50% quoted text will be carefully reviewed by a moderator to determine whether that degree of quoting is warranted. Posts with excessive quoted text may be rejected.

IMPORTANT: If you use a newsreader (such as Google Groups) that allows you to hide the posting to which you are replying, you must unhide the quoted text and trim it appropriately. Also be certain that your newsreader is not configured to automatically append the previous article to the bottom of your postings. All participants in rec.radio.broadcasting are responsible for using their news-readers properly to comply with the group's posting guidelines.

"Me too!" posts are discouraged. If you do post such a message, you must edit the quoted material significantly.

3.5 Pseudonyms

Contributors to rec.radio.broadcasting are encouraged to use their real (given or on-air) names. This not only creates a greater sense of community in the newsgroup, it also lends credibility to posters' opinions. However, as a pragmatic concession to the realities of the present-day Internet, and consistent with the practices of other moderated newsgroups, pseudonyms and unroutable email address are permitted with some restrictions.

We ask that the From: lines of submitted articles not misrepresent your identity, not be changed often, and not match a user or domain name other than your own (spoofing). Postings that have a pseudonym that violates any of our other rules (such as civility) will be rejected.

Please realize that if you use an unroutable email address, you will not be able to receive acknowledgment or rejection messages for your submitted articles. If one of your articles was rejected and you are unable to receive the notice that explains the rejection, you will need to send a note to the moderation team for clarification.

3.6 Signature files

Many people close each article they write with a few lines of common text. This may be a clever quote, contact information, or disclaimer required by their employer. Signature (.sig) files attached to rec.radio.broadcasting postings must be no longer than four lines plus a standard delimiter (such as two dashes).

The content of a poster's signature need not be relevant to broadcasting, but it must not violate any of the other posting guidelines. (For example, name-calling that would not be acceptable in the body of a message is also unacceptable in a signature.) Posters may include Uniform Resource Locators (URLs) and business addresses in signature files, provided they comply with all the other guidelines regarding signatures.

3.7 Use of copyrighted material

Unless you own the copyright yourself or have the written permission of the copyright owner (either of which must be so stated), do not post copyrighted material such as newspaper articles to rec.radio.broadcasting. Instead, post a synopsis of the material with a link to the full article. If you are posting a link to a blog or other site where information changes frequently, please use a "permalink" to the exact article you're citing.

Quoting of public domain information, such as radio station information from the FCC database, is fine.

3.8 Pointers to outside sources

Unsolicited announcements and pointers to web sites that are exclusively advertisements or other public relations campaigns are not permitted. However, a pointer to a website or other external source of information is permitted and encouraged in cases where it is relevant to an existing thread, with appropriate context being given in the post.

A URL with no information about what a user should expect to find there will be rejected. If you are posting a link to a blog or other site where information changes frequently, please use a

"permalink" to the exact article you're citing. Also, we prefer full URLs instead of (or in addition to) ones that have been modified by a link shortener so that readers of the posting will know which website they are actually going to. If you do use a link shortener, please also indicate the full name of the website to which you are linking.

A pointer to information that is off-charter for rec.radio.broadcasting will be rejected, as will a pointer which itself does not meet the rec.radio.broadcasting guidelines (such as a URL containing name-calling).

Moderators are not responsible for verifying the contents of any external information source. Moderators only review submissions for adherence to the RRB guidelines, such as appropriateness of topic and Usenet etiquette.

4. TECHNICAL AND ADMINISTRATIVE ISSUES

4.1 Crossposting

A limited amount of appropriate simultaneous crossposting will be permitted at the discretion of the moderation team. Appropriate crossposted newsgroups could include rec.radio.noncomm, ba.broadcast, ba.broadcast.moderated, or alt.radio.broadcasting. Currently, a limit of 3 newsgroups total is enforced by our moderation software.

Please note that, because of the way moderated Usenet groups work, any posting submitted to a moderated group will not be forwarded to any other groups until it is accepted by the initial group. For example, if you submit a posting to both RRB and BAB, and we reject it, it will never appear on BAB.

4.2 Valid "From" address

Participants in rec.radio.broadcasting may, if they wish, use an invalid or "munged" email address in their "From" header line. However, please be aware that if you do so, you will be unable to receive messages from the moderators, such as requests to revise submitted postings or explanations of why postings were rejected.

Also, we want rec.radio.broadcasting to promote interaction among participants, and in some cases, information is more appropriately relayed off-list. If you do not provide a valid email address, other posters will not be able to send you information, ask questions, etc. Therefore, if you are considering using an invalid "From" address in order to avoid spam email, we recommend that you instead (1) find an ISP with robust spam-filtering for incoming email, and/or (2) obtain an email address just for your Usenet postings (e.g. from Yahoo or Gmail).

4.3 Lost or rejected postings

We never reject anything in silence, and we make a point to answer all our mail. However, newsgroup postings can and do get lost every now and again.

If you send us a posting and you neither see it in RRB nor hear from us directly within two or three days, you can be pretty sure that either your mail never reached us, or that our answer never reached you. (See section 4.2 for why the latter might happen.) In that case, please submit your article again. (We will filter out duplicates.) You're also welcome to send a note to rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com if you have any concerns about your submissions not being received.

If you have any questions or comments about these guidelines, please send a message to rec-radio-broadcasting-request@panix.com.
